A New Word, Banksters
Gullible, Emotional, Correct
We Are All Prisoners
The Rockefeller Name

By Arthur Brisbane

CYRUS H. K. CURTIS receives from Paris information that American bankers are called "banksters," in high French financial circles.

A "bankster" is supposed to be a combination of banker and gangster, expressing French opinion of American bankers.

New York bankers may reply that in dealing with the more clever of the distinguished French bankers a little of the gangster quality would not come amiss, for purposes of self defense.

It is no secret that gentlemen came here from the Bank of France, with threats to withdraw all French gold from New York, as they had drawn all gold from London. They thought this would frighten American bankers, and were surprised when told: "The sooner you take that gold out, the better we shall be pleased. It doesn't mean anything to us."

A British newspaper says Americans are "gullible and emotional," an accurate description. They were emotional when they sent three million men and ten billions of dollars to Europe, and VERY gullible, when they were silly enough to imagine that they would get the money back.

Cables from England report disappointment caused by our refusal to postpone debt payments indefinitely. It is suggested that Britain and France, combined, notify the United States that they will not pay what they owe.

Many Britishers will object to that suggestion, for the word "welcher" is unpopular in a country much addicted to race track gambling.

The United States hereafter might remember Benjamin Franklin's sound advice against borrowing and lending, or go farther back and take two lines from the excellent English author of Hamlet:

"Neither a borrower nor a lender be,
For loan oft loses both itself and friend."

We lost our friends in Europe, if they were friends, which is extremely doubtful, on the day we lent them the money.

The death of a guard in the government penitentiary at Leavenworth reminds us that we are all prisoners. William Superkrup, guard in the prison, was a free man, able to go out when he chose and do what he liked. Prisoners, thinking only of the liberty outside prison walls, were amazed to hear that the guard had killed himself, with freedom and the world before him.

But nobody is free. We are all prisoners, tied to this little earth by the power of gravitation, sailing with it around the sun, going Heaven knows where.

Magnificent buildings that John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is erecting in the heart of New York city will mean an expenditure of two hundred million dollars, fortunately for workers and contractors in these dull times.

This Rockefeller enterprise, parks with growing trees on the roofs of tall buildings, would have amazed ancient Babylon and its hanging gardens. It will be a city within a city, and tenants in the city will be glad to hear that Mr. Rockefeller has consented to the use of his name. "Rockefeller City" in business will be a name more valuable than "Radio City."

Slow going army and navy gentlemen who think the airplane would be "merely an auxiliary weapon in war" should read the news from Manchuria. The Chinese send a large force marching on foot against Mukden, "60,000 regular bandits and irregulars."

Gen. Honjo, Japanese commander-in-chief, sends a flock of airplanes roaring southward to meet the attack with aerial machine gun fire and bombs.

Airplanes "raining death" and out of reach are discouraging to those on foot.

The Associated Press says British metal circles announce an agreement to reduce copper production in 1932 by 26 per cent.

This is good news for the industry, if somebody can be found to buy the remaining 74 per cent.

Tariffs are the latest fashion. England is trying one, that, by the way, disturbs the French a great deal.

Why not decide in America to use copper produced in America, and build around it one of

BIG 'SLUSH' FUNDS NOT REPORTED, SAYS NYE

Discrepancies in Anti-Smith Collections Violated Law, Declares Senate Report

Washington, Dec. 22 (AP)—The Senate was informed by its special campaign funds investigating committee today that Bishop James Cannon, Jr., collected more than $130,000 in the anti-Smith Democratic campaign of 1928, but reported only $58,558.

Summarizing its lengthy inquiry into handling of money by the bishop, the committee reported this had revealed "numerous apparent violations of the federal corrupt practices act and many unexplained discrepancies" between the bank accounts in which the funds were deposited and the reports made to the clerk of the House as required by law. All the money collected, it said, should have been accounted for under the law.

It was this report upon which Bishop Cannon asked the senate to withhold judgment until he had an opportunity to reply. The Bishop now is fighting an indictment for violation of the corrupt practices act in the District of Columbia Supreme court.

CANNON HANDLED CASH

The committee said Bishop Cannon himself handled a "large part of the funds" and deposited them in accounts upon which he "alone was able to draw checks."

The committee reported $18,300 of the political contributions received by Cannon were placed on deposit to the credit of "James Cannon, Jr.," or "James Cannon, Jr., executor," prior to the date of the general election in 1928 and

'LEGS' FUNERAL FLOP AS SHOW

New York, Dec. 22 (INS)—Jack "Legs" Diamond, riding to his last resting place through the cold drizzle of a weeping day, set a new fashion in gangsters' funerals.

Today he led a ribald procession, among whom was only one who mourned for him, Alice Shiffer Diamond, his loyal, long-suffering wife, who has stood by him through life, who dore, crying, behind his bedragled hearse on the last journey of his body.

Here was a "big shot" going to his rest. Here was a rat, if you will, whose every movement was watched with trepidation by police of the great cities. Here was a man whom England indignantly barred from her shores as a menace to the well-being of her people. An international character. A man of whom gangland might well be proud but wasn't.

And how did he go to his tomb? He went in the rain, without benefit of clergy. He went shabbily and alone save for the ribald and the curious who followed him halfheartedly with laughter and sneers that the funeral hadn't turned out to be a better "show."

A new fashion in underworld "big shot" funerals.

(The Boston Evening American prints today the second chapter in Marion "Kiki" Roberts' own story of her life, written exclusively for this paper while she is in seclusion recovering from the shock of Jack "Legs" Diamond's murder before she surrenders to police. It is a thrilling story of her life as a Back Bay showgirl, as a Follies beauty on Broadway and as Diamond's sweetheart in the haunts of the half-world.)

My first big party!

How many times, amid the drab surroundings to which my love for Jack Diamond later consigned me, has my mind turned back to dwell for a fleeting moment on that night of bright lights and warm music and famous personages in the Club Casanova!

There have been dismal, dingy rooms and dreary days and lonely nights since then. There have been flittering figures and fast rides, and twice, close by me, the sound of guns turned on the man I loved.

God knows it was mine to make the choice. I made it—and there are no second choices. So be it.

But at queer times my mind has flashed back for a picture of the gayety of that night with George White standing by my side, smiling and saying:

"I want you to meet some very nice people."

DANCE WITH LASKY

There was Adolph Zukor, first, then Jesse Lasky, of Paramount, two of the most influential men in motion pictures. They were sailing for Europe the following night and I learned, to my surprise, that the party was in their honor.

Mr. White introduced us. "This is Miss Roberts, one of the dancers from Mr. Ziegfeld's 'Whoopee.'" They bowed, and Mr. Lasky asked: "Would you care to dance with me."

Imagine one of the biggest men

CHILD FOUND SLAIN BY KIDNAPER

Ohio Girl Attacked and Strangled in the Basement of a Slum District Tenement

Cincinnati, O., Dec. 22 (AP)—Thrown across a pile of old boards, the body of little six-year-old Marion McLean, who had been kidnaped, attacked and murdered, was found today in the basement of a tenement building near her home in the slum district. The child was abducted last Thursday.

Detectives just missed finding the child alive, in the opinion of Coroner Scott Kearns who said the girl had not been dead very long.

VICTIM OF ATTACK

The body was discovered in the basement of a building at 411 West 12th street by Charles Bishop who occupied a room on the third floor.

Marian's clothes were torn and there was a small blue mark on her forehead. The coroner and police said she had been strangled after being attacked.

Bishop said he had been in the basement as late as last night to fix a furnace fire, but had not seen the body at that time. He went to the cellar to chop kindling when he came upon Marian's body, which had been tossed onto a pile of boards.

HUNT FOR KILLER.

No trace had been found of the child's killer. All the city man hunting power renewed the intensive search for the slayer as soon as the body was reported found.

The cellar where the body was discovered is very dark and is accessible only by a narrow stairway. The child was lying on her back, close to the stairway. She was clad in the blue chinchilla coat which she wore when she last was seen on Thursday.

Discovery of the body resulted as police had theorized—that the girl was abducted by a degenerate and that she never would be found alive.

A report was received at police headquarters that Marian was strangled.

The girl, too ill to go to school, had been confined in her fourth floor tenement home for a month until last Thursday, when her mother, Mrs. Mildred McLean, permitted Marian to go down on to a narrow street for fresh air.

There she played around a doorstep for an hour with her toys and then walked up street half a square to where a friend, Julius Servizzi, 17, was washing his auto.

Marian watched him polish the car and then broke out into a hearty little laugh when Servizzi's dog with muddy paws jumped onto the clean fenders.

Julius Servizzi, a 17-year-old youth, was the last known person to have seen the child alive. He said she played about his automobile for some time until she followed a dark-complexioned man, whom he described as a foreigner.

Marian's body was found less than an hour after 105 city firemen were taken from their regular duties and ordered to aid in the search for her.

Hiawatha, Kan., Dec. 22 (INS)—Three persons perished and 11 were rescued from a blazing inferno caused by the headon collision of a truck and an interstate bus near here today.

BIG FIRMS PAY OFF EARLY TO AID XMAS

Thousands of Dollars Are Advanced to Workers to Enable Them to Do Shopping

Thousands of dollars in Christmas cash were put in the hands of Boston employes today in line with the suggestion of the Boston Evening American that pay days be advanced for Christmas shoppers.

Outstanding in the move was the Employers Group, Mutual insurance firm that employs thousands, who would not ordinarily be paid until Saturday or Monday.

The company advanced its semi-monthly pay day to tomorrow, releasing a huge sum so last minute purchases could be made by its employes.

DAY SOONER

The Edison Electric Illuminating Co., employers of more than 3600, advanced its pay day to Thursday morning.

The John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co. advanced the payoff time a full day, moving it to Wednesday and Thursday this week instead of the usual Thursday and Friday pay days for more than 3000 employes.

In the candy industry, the New England Confectionary Co. started with the payoff of men employes today instead of Thursday and the women employes tomorrow instead of Friday.

The New England Telephone & Telegraph Co. advanced its monthly and semi-monthly payrolls to enable 750 employes and 400 pensioners to receive their checks before Christmas.

Pay days of the other 20,000 employes fall on the days before Christmas this week under the regular system.

Hundreds of smaller firms in the city were also paying in advance.

PASTOR GUILTY, FINE DROPPED

A lower court verdict finding the Rev. Paul Noyes guilty of speaking without a permit on Boston Common, was upheld by Judge Harold P. Williams in the jury-waived session of Superior Court today, and the case was placed on file.

Judge Williams dropped the $10 fine imposed on the Rev. Noyes in lower court, and said that while the Belmont minister's act in feeding the destitute on Boston Common was "commendable," he had no right legally to speak there without a permit.

The Rev. Noyes maintained that the only address he made on Nov. 22 was in asking for volunteers to slice bread and obtain meat for the sandwiches.

LEVINE, WOMAN FACE COURT

Waterville, Me., Dec. 22—A crowd that overflowed the courtroom surrounded the court building here today as a preliminary hearing in the Levine murder case was held.

Merton Levine, 23, and the Levine family housekeeper, Mrs. Ella Johnson, 38, a negress, faced each other for the first time since their arrest two weeks ago charged with the murder of Merton's 19-year-old brother, Abraham, last September.

The state alleges that they killed Abraham because he objected to their intimacy.

Cheer Fills Christmas Baskets

Pictures on Pages 13 and 14

What a real "Merry Christmas" there is in the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund basket!

A fine big turkey for every family with more than two children. A fine, fat chicken for the small families, for the infirm, for the aged, for the many forlorn individuals who find themselves alone and unwanted at the time when every person longs for home, people and friends.

One poverty-stricken family has 14 young children hoping for a bit of Christmas cheer. In many families there are 12 youngsters and families of eight and ten children run into the hundreds.

Every family is endorsed by some recognized person. There can be no duplication.

NOTICE!

The Evening American regrets it will be unable to care for any additional families. Thousands of requests already are on file, far beyond the resources of the basket fund. Requests outnumber donations, unfortunately, 100 to 1.

THOUSANDS IN NEED

Times are hard in thousands of homes. Food is often scarce. Thousands of children are getting along on crusts of bread and trying to be cheerful about it.

But all their griefs and sorrows will be forgotten for one day, at least, as the result of the generosity of those who have aided in the glorious work of the Boston Evening American Basket Fund. Turkey and all the fixings, topped off with cookies, candy and

2 IN BRIGHTON, 1 IN ROXBURY ROBBED

Total of $123.50 in Cash Is Loot of Youthful Pair of Bandits

Three chain store holdups in 45 minutes were recorded in Roxbury and Brighton today as police sought to break the crime [illegible].

At the same time East Boston police [illegible] belated reports of holdups at two poker games yesterday morning.

The first holdup today came at 7:30 at a chain store in Calumet st., Roxbury, where Michael Halloran, manager, was robbed of $5 and the till emptied of $7.50.

Two youths of the sheik type entered the store soon after it opened, Halloran told police, and ordered him to stretch out on the floor with arms extended.

They made a thorough search for possible hiding places, but were forced to leave with the total of $12.50. Both youths carried guns and were obscene and threatening in their talk, Halloran said.

THREATENED WITH DEATH

A few hours later the same pair held up Richard Walsh, manager of a chain store in Chestnut ave., Roxbury.

The two forced Walsh against the wall counter, threatened him with death if he moved and then rifled the cash register of $60.

But 30 minutes later a pair answering the same descriptions held up another chain store in Commonwealth ave., Brighton, near Fordham rd.

John Noonan, manager, was threatened there and was forced to turn his back on the thieves while they took $50 from the till.

Noonan caught the number of a sedan the youths escaped in, the car having been parked outside with another youth at the wheel.

TWO ARRESTED

The plates carrying the same number reported by a pedestrian in Roxbury, were those of a car stolen in Chelsea last July.

In yesterday's East Boston holdup, three bandits escaped with $600 from a poker game in a Paris st. house. The same trio gathered up $175 in a poker game in Havre st.

Two men were arrested in connection with them after participants in the games refused to heed the warning of the bandits.

"Don't squawk or you'll get bumped off."

The two arrested gave their names as Louis DiBiccari of Trenton st., East Boston, and Christi Sanecchiaro of Mountain ave., Revere.

Today's series of crimes came as police launched an "undercover" campaign against gunmen and other criminals who have piled up an amazing [illegible] of holdups and thefts in the past few days.

From Saturday noon until midnight last night 15 successful holdups, a safe break, 124 automobile thefts and scores of small breaks accounted for [illegible] the $2500 mark.

HOOVER TORE CONSTITUTION TO BITS, SAYS JOHNSON

SCRAP OF PAPER IN NEGOTIATING MORATORIUM

California Senator Renews His Attack on Debt Holiday Before Crowded Galleries

Washington, Dec. 22—The Senate was told today by Senator Johnson, Republican, of California, that the constitution was "utilized as a mere scrap of paper and torn to bits" by President Hoover in negotiating the one year moratorium.

Renewing his attack upon the debt holiday, the Californian contended that the agreement for suspension of reparations and war debt payments was put into effect in form different from that to which 68 Senators pledged support.

A vote on the moratorium by tonight was hoped for by leaders as debate got under way an hour earlier than the usual meeting time.

Despite a rain outside, the galleries were filled. Mrs. Patrick Hurley, wife of the Secretary of War, sat in the Presidential section.

Johnson contended that President Hoover, whom he did not mention by name, negotiated, in effect, a treaty on the moratorium with France and the allies without calling Congress into session.

"The Constitution of the United States," said Johnson, "was utilized as a mere scrap of paper, torn to bits and scattered to the heavens for the aid of Europe."

A bill to authorize the Metropolitan District Commission to spend $30,000 in dredging and otherwise improving the Upper Mystic Lake and the Aberjona river, in Winchester, has been filed with the clerk of the House, on petition of Rep. Thomas R. Bateman of Winchester and Sen. Charles C. Warren of Arlington.

CHINA CABINET QUITS IN BODY

Nanking, China, Dec. 22 (AP)—China's fast shifting political stage underwent an additional shake-up late today when the entire National government cabinet resigned.

The capital was astounded by the news of the resignations. Former President Chiang Kai-Shek left suddenly by airplane for his native town of Fenghua, in northern Chekiang.

The reason for his leaving remained a mystery tonight, although the belief was expressed in some quarters that a number of the leaders who are slated to come here to assist in forming the new government declined to do so unless he depart.

The resignations of the cabinet were turned in despite appeals by Gen. Chen Ming Shu, acting head of the Executive Yuan, that they carry on their duties.

N. Y. Society Dentist Kills Self With Gun

New York, Dec. 22 (INS)—Harried by financial worries, Dr. Edward F. Concklin, 56, society dentist, killed himself today in the basement of his sumptuous home.

He had lost heavily in stock investments recently, friends say.

His body was found by a servant. Nearby was a double-barreled shotgun the dentist had exploded against his head by pulling the trigger with his toe.

the tariff walls that Europe is constructing?

Important wars hereafter will be tariff wars undoubtedly. And since the great copper production in South as well as North America is financed, engineered, developed and owned by the United States, why not have a tariff to protect the copper of North and South America against the rest of the world?

That this country should be protected against the gigantic copper fields of Africa, where they measure copper deposits by the square mile, may be offensive to our good friend Britain. But if protection for American workers was ever needed, it is needed in that case, considering that African copper is produced by colored "boys" that work for five dollars a month.

Not much chance for American producers or workers in competition with wages of that sort.

oranges, will do much to make the youngsters forget the aches and griefs, the chill winds of every other day of the winter.

The basket will contain, in addition to the turkey, the following items:

A peck of potatoes.
Three pounds of onions.
A pound of coffee.
Two pounds of sugar.
Two cans of peas.
Two cans of corn.
Two loaves of bread.
A large bottle of preserves.
A large package of cookies.
A pound of hard candy.
One dozen of oranges.

MORE FUNDS NEEDED

Deliveries will begin Wednesday and will continue until every dollar in the Basket Fund is exhausted.

With each basket goes a gaily decorated Christmas greeting.

The only sorrowful part of the whole affair is that there will not be money enough to take care of all of the thousands of families who are seeking this one day of happiness, through a good dinner.

Thousands of anxious mothers and fathers whose greatest joy would be to see their children happy, if only for that one day, must be disappointed. Every list and name sent in by churches, clubs and social organizations has been checked and the order filled. But the demand is endless.

Many organizations which heretofore have had Christmas funds of their own have been unable to care for their families this year. The Evening American fund is doing all it can to help them out. But money is scarce this year; the good work will have to stop when the available funds are gone.

The fund will remain open right up until Christmas Eve. It is not too late to help a little now. Every dollar means joy to several children in the way of a real old-fashioned Christmas dinner—and food for several days thereafter.

Checks and money may be sent to the Christmas Basket Fund, the Evening American.

"retained on deposit to the credit of such accounts for considerable periods subsequent to the election."

The committee stated "it would appear reasonable" from previous testimony of Bishop Cannon that a safe-deposit box in the American National Bank of Richmond, Va., "was used as a depository for some of the large amounts of cash which were received as campaign contributions, a total of $27,550 in cash having been received from E. C. Jameson alone."

MAILS USE HIDDEN

The report recited the refusal of Miss Ada L. Burroughs, treasurer, and the Rev. J. Sidney Peters, secretary of the anti-Smith committee, to testify. However, it withheld a recommendation of action against them pending a court decision which is to be rendered on a demurrer challenging jurisdiction of the committee.

"Mr. Peters' testimony was particularly desired by the committee," said the report, "in order to establish the facts with reference to the solicitation by mail of contributions to pay off an alleged deficit of some $6500, which was more than covered by two contributions totaling $7300 made by Jameson subsequent to the close of the campaign."

The report told the story of the 10 bank accounts maintained by Cannon during the 1928 campaign and sought to trace the funds to their ultimate destination.

CANNON'S "LOANS" HIT

Referring to "loans" refunded to Bishop Cannon from anti-Smith funds the committee states 'it may be noted that the report which had been filed by Miss Burroughs under date of Dec. 31, 1928, had listed no unpaid obligations and had stated the amount due on the loans was $7001.31 whereas, on Feb. 11, 1929, alleged refunds amounting to $17,308.11 were listed as having been paid to Bishop Cannon."

The committee further noted a repayment of a "loan" of $5006 to the anti-Smith Democrats of North Carolina which it said "is clear did not represent a personal advance of funds by Bishop Cannon."

Father of 7 Held in Theft to Pay Loan

Hugh H. Miner, 50, father of seven children, of North Main st., Randolph, who told police he was out of work and stole to get funds to pay off loans on his furniture, was held in $5000 today for the grand jury, in Quincy court.

He pleaded guilty to breaking and entering the summer home of Hayden Saden of Hotel Westminster, Boston, at 458 North Main st., Randolph. Silverware and clothing, valued at $300, was taken and pawned in Boston. All was recovered. Chief of Police Patrick McDonald said that an investigation showed the loan was paid, as Miner claimed, on Dec. 17, three days after the break.

1—Gen. Rung Chen, Chinese commander here, has no intention of trying to capture Mukden. He doesn't even seem to have any plan for defense in case the Japanese attack Chinchow.

2—There are no indications that the Chinese are massing troops near here.

$1200 IN SOCK

For the first time in my life I used my sox as a bandit proof safe deposit vault.

Cols. Margetts and Thornhill, American and British military attaches; John Carter Vincent, consul at Mukden; Mrs. B. Starne of New York, and I came through the much talked of "bandit zone" from Mukden to Chinchow in a special car attached to the regular train.

As we left the Japanese zone and entered this no man's land, or "bad man's land," as it is called, we were instructed to conceal our money and valuables. I shoved $1200 into a sock, while Mrs. Starne concealed her money and jewelry in mysterious places.

UNEVENTFUL JOURNEY

After more than two hours of journeying thus we arrived safely. All the bandits we saw were just villainous looking Chinamen who flattened their already flat faces against the car windows and grinned at us.

I do not find any indications that the Chinese are concentrating troops at Chinchow. This is confirmed by Cols. Margetts and Thornhill, who have been here for a month making observations.

Two Japanese Slain in Fight With Bandits

Mukden, Dec. 22 (AP)—Two Japanese were killed in a fight early today when Chinese bandits attacked a station at Kaolimen, 25 miles northwest of Antung, according to an official announcement here.

Japanese police and railway employes beat back the attacks, the announcement said. It added that bandit forays on the Antung-Mukden railway have been frequent recently because the Japanese troops which normally guard that section have been moved westward to the Dairen Changchun trunk line.

JAPS INSIST ON ARMS PARLEY

Tokio, Dec. 22 (AP)—Japan opposes any suggestion to postpone the disarmament conference scheduled for next February at Geneva and will so inform the British government.

A note presented to Premier Inukai by Sir Francis Lindley, British ambassador, said Britain considered it desirable not to disturb arrangements for the conference, but Japan's opinion would be appreciated in view of suggestions from certain kuarters that a postponement would be expedient inasmuch as the conference might conflict in date with the reparations meeting tentatively scheduled to begin next month.

The British note was presented last Thursday and was intended to be highly confidential, but in view of a talk, official circles saw fit today to make known Japan's attitude.

Japs Bombard and Seize Walled City of Fakumen

Tokio, Dec. 22 (INS)—Virtually completing their object of cleaning up the area of southern Manchuria between Mukden and Szupingkai, west of the southern Manchurian railway, Japanese troops today captured the walled city of Fakumen, base of operations for 7000 Chinese bandits.

Capture of the city was preceded by a brief bombardment, necessary because of its heavy fortification. Little resistance was offered by the bandits or Chinese officials of the city.

GANG'S GUNGIRL IS DEFIED BY WOMAN

Keenness of Intended Victim Frustrates Attempted Robbery in Rehoboth House

Rehoboth, Dec. 22—Three armed youths and an attractive blonde gun girl were frustrated in their attempt to rob a North Rehoboth house by the quick wit of Miss Joyce O'Neil, whom they found alone there and threatened with death early today.

State police of Massachusetts and Rhode Island today launched a wide search for the quartet, who, Miss O'Neil reported fled from the house in a car bearing Rhode Island registration plates.

FLOURISH GUNS

The group, all flourishing guns, burst into the house where Miss O'Neil was sitting alone shortly before midnight.

They placed their guns at her head, threatening to shoot her if she made an outcry. They demanded money and she replied that she had none.

The three youths left the gun girl on guard and proceeded to systematically ransack the house.

Miss O'Neil began a conversation with the gun girl who had been left guarding her. She repeated her assertion there was no money in the house and even told the girl that she didn't believe she would shoot her.

FRIGHTENS INTRUDERS

An auto happened to pass by the house and Miss O'Neil quickly seized on this as a means of possible escape. She called the girl's attention to the sound and said it was probably her family returning home.

The gun girl became excited and shouted to her companions. The three youths ran in and the girl told them Miss O'Neil's family had returned. They said they had found nothing and decided to leave. They backed out warning Miss O'Neil not to move.

After they left she ran to the window and saw them speed off in the Rhode Island car. She was unable to distinguish the numbers, she said.

Shortly afterward Mains surrendered to Deputy Sheriff William Lemke at Lisbon Falls.

Hoover Sheds Presidency to Be Granddaddy

WHITE HOUSE'S DIGNITY FALLS TO PEGGY ANN

She and Peter Capture the Place and Make It Ring With Merry Laughter

Washington, Dec. 22 (AP)—President Hoover tossed aside the cares of chief executive for a moment today to become just a grandfather, welcoming two blue-eyed, blond-haired children into their second home—the White House.

Too impatient to await their arrival indoors, he stepped to the open portico as soon as their automobile swung into the grounds. Within a minute he had an arm around young Peggy Ann, with an affectionate kiss for her, and a pat for Peter Hoover, who clung to his leg.

A cold, misty day and heavy rain failed to dampen the warmth of that greeting. Nor had it prevented Mrs. Hoover from giving an equally affectionate welcome at Union Station to her son, Herbert, Jr., his wife and the two children when they arrived from the west.

ROMP OVER THE PLACE

"Hello, granddaddy!" cried Peggy Ann, 7, as she rushed onto the White House portico, and the cry was echoed by Peter.

Trooping into the White House all in a group, the President and First Lady and their sons and grandchildren exchanged more greetings.

Then the entire party romped from the White House proper to the President's office, with Peggy Ann and Peter clinging to their grandfather's hands—long a custom of the three.

The chief executive had eaten breakfast earlier with the younger Hoover son, Allan, who arrived last night after a part flying, part train trip from Los Angeles. He walked back to the White House with them all and joined in the conversation while the rest of the family ate.

WHITE HOUSE CAPITULATES

Peggy Ann and Peter lost no time in making the White House their own.

With Boris, the President's valet and their grown-up playmate, as a guide, they made a friendly, smiling tour of the offices. They shook hands very politely with the police captain who guards the executive office door, made the rounds of secret service men, and came into the press room for a handshake and greeting with every newspaperman.

They then trooped out again accompanied by "Weejie," one of the White House dogs, a friendly Norwegian elkhound.

With feminine inquisitiveness, blue-eyed Peggy Ann looked into each press room telephone booth, and climbed onto the seat of one to see just how things worked.

HERE'S LATEST BAD TIMES CURE

Washington, Dec. 22 (AP)—Living rationally, within our income is the cure for economic disturbances proposed by a public works committee of the President's unemployment organization.

This advice was coupled, in a report yesterday, with thorough disapproval of proposals for bond issues of billions for gigantic public works prospects.

After analysis, Chairman James A. Garfield of Cleveland, and his associate labelled these ideas "unsound in principle."

"Whatever may have been the causes of the present condition," they advised, "the common sense remedy is to stop borrowing, except to meet unavoidable deficits, balance our budgets and live within our income."

BOY SAVES CHUM IN ICY POND

Newburyport, Dec. 22—On the thin, cracking edge of treacherous ice filming Mall pond, a nine-year-old boy placed his life at stake today to rescue, single-handed, his unconscious 10-year-old "pal."

The first bell for school was ringing when Ernest Gray, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gray of Green st., reached down into the icy hole through which William Cronin Jr., 10, had crashed, seized Cronin's hair and pulled him up on the cracking ice.

Then the younger boy, chattering from his wet clothing and soaked arms spread-eagled his "pal" on the thin ice to distribute his weight and slowly dragged him back 100 feet to the shore and safety.

The boys set out half an hour before school time to run "benders" on the new ice, and young Cronin was well out from shore when the ice suddenly cracked.

COMPROMISE IN GERMAN DEBTS

Basel, Switzerland, Dec. 22 (INS)—A drafting formula was prepared today, outlining the report the Young Plan advisory committee will make public tomorrow as a result of its study of Germany's capacity to pay.

The formula showed the committee's conclusions will be in the form of a compromise without an effective recommendation.

The formula drawn by Sir Walter Layton of Great Britain, Dr. Carl Melchior of Germany, and Dr. Charles Rist of France, will simply report Germany's present incapacity to pay and recommend a moratorium, dodging the question of the length of the moratorium.

Whether the final report will remain within the confines of the Young Plan, and whether priority should be given to reparations or Germany's short-term obligations were issues left untouched in the formula.

LIFE MAN BACKS BIG JOBS FUND

Washington, Dec. 22 (AP)—Witnesses before a Senate committee today continued to advocate establishment of the $500,000,000 reconstruction corporation, an insurance man asserting it was badly needed because of heavy borrowing on policies.

He was Frederick Ecker, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

Ecker attributed the heavy demand for loans to depressed economic conditions.

He said 32 per cent of the total $1,300,000 invested by life insurance companies is being required to meet loan applications this year. He reminded that insurance companies have large holdings of railroad bonds and asserted the present "rail emergency is greater than that of 1920," which followed the return of the roads to private operation after the war.

Doctor and SchoolRow on Shower

One of Chestnut Hill's best families and the Newton school authorities are at sword's point over a shower bath.

The shower is the one that Dorothy Barstow, daughter of Dr. Myron Barstow of Hammond st., refuses to take at the John W. Weeks Junior High School following physical training.

"No shower, no physical training" is the edict of the school authorities.

Dr. Barstow will not permit his daughter to take the shower because he believes it is injurious immediately following physical exercise.

BARRED FROM TRAINING

Recently he sent a letter requesting that Dorothy be excused from the shower and he followed it up with a personal visit to the school. At the request of the authorities he presented a certificate from another doctor saying it was not desirable for the girl to take a shower after calisthenics.

Whereupon the school not only excused her from the shower but from the physical training.

This disturbed Dr. Barstow because he believed it might interfere with his daughter's scholastic standing, injure her credits and prevent her from entering college.

UNIVERSAL PRACTICE

The matter was thrashed out at the meeting of the Newton school committee last night, and Supt. Ulysses G. Wheeler told the members that bathing after exercise was a universal practice and that, anyway, only one-half a credit was given for physical training.

"She won't be examined on shower baths in college, so they needn't worry about that," he said.

He indicated that Dr. Barstow might take the matter before the courts and the committee voted to leave in the superintendent's hands the entire matter, after letters from physical directors, telling of the benefits of showers, were read.

That means, unless court orders a change, that the girl can't take physical exercise unless she takes a shower afterward.

Ex-Follies Girl Declares Diamond "Really Did Good, but Was Misunderstood"

Jack "Legs" Diamond, in death, found his sweetheart, Marion "Kiki" Roberts, today, where police and the district attorney of Albany had failed.

The Boston Follies girl, in seclusion here, confided to the Boston Evening American that she had received [illegible] from the slain gangster, and a message of consolation from him.

"Jack appeared to me out of a dim haze," she said. "His face, at first obscure, kept coming closer and closer and more sharply outlined.

"Finally I saw him clearly. He was smiling. He then spoke. He said:

"'I'm happy because you are with your mother. You are safe now, dear. Don't worry.'

"Then, still smiling, he faded away and left me tingling with excitement. I fell into a deep sleep.

"I pray to God every night that he may find perfect rest.

"He was a greatly misunderstood man in his life; he really did a lot of good."

Kiki's report of the psychic visit recalls that her mother, Mrs. Grace Strasnick, has told of seeing her own dead mother's face in a dream twice before Diamond was slain, and that she was informed by a medium that a "Jack," who was in some way connected with her life, would soon die.

DOLE CHARGED IN EVERETT

On the ground that Everett is spending more money to aid the unemployed than any other city of its size and that if the expenditures continue, the city will be forced into bankruptcy, a movement has started for the naming of a committee of citizens to see what can be done towards providing work for residents which will give the city some return on the money expended.

Everett is paying out money to the unemployed at a rate of $400,000 a year, says Charles T. Hall of Everett.

"The city of Everett has the dole system in force just as much as any community in England," he charged. "The city cannot continue to pay out this amount in doles for any long period of time or it will be forced into bankruptcy."

$35,000 FIRE SET BY YEGGS IN TAUNTON

Taunton, Dec. 22—Fire, started by safe-breakers, destroyed the four-story structure at 39 Taunton Green today and menaced the central business district. Three alarms were sounded.

After the flames were under control firemen discovered that the safe in the drugstore on the first floor had been smashed open and looted of $730. A pocketbook containing $135 was also taken from the store.

STARTED BY ROBBERS

It is a mystery whether the thieves started the fire intentionally or accidentally. Inspector George O. Mansfield of the state fire marshal's staff assigned Inspector John N. Sullivan to investigate, with police co-operating.

The building was occupied by offices on the second and third floors and storage space on the fourth. Loss was estimated at more than $35,000.

Fire Chief Leonard, soon after reaching the scene, ordered the sounding of second and third alarms.

Every available policeman and fireman was summoned to the scene. After a stubborn battle firemen confined the blaze to the one building. The Bristol County Savings Bank and the Taunton Gas and Electric Company, in adjoining buildings, were menaced for a long period.

FLAMES SPREAD FAST

The blaze was seen by Patrolman T. G. Galligan, on duty in Taunton Green. He noticed smoke coming from a drug store in the first floor at 39 Taunton Green, shortly after 3 a. m. He sounded the first alarm.

The flames worked rapidly through the building and had burst through the roof when firemen arrived. Sparks and burning embers were being carried to neighboring buildings and firemen had a hard struggle checking the outbreak of other fires.

Washington, Dec. 22 (AP)—Lieut. Allen R. McCann today was commended by Secretary Adams for "disregard of personal safety" in the development of the submarine rescue bell.

McCann, who is from North Adams, Mass., has been working for two years on a bell which will carry from a sunken submarine a maximum of 18 men.

Tests on the S-4 demonstrated the bell's efficiency so wel that the Navy has placed them at all submarine bases.

"KIKI" HAS FIRST TASTE OF BROADWAY AND LIKES IT

We danced, and I enjoyed his dancing. He told me he never missed a Ziegfeld show and that I was a good representative of the Ziegfeld girls. Such a compliment coming from him flattered me and I blushed.

And then all the rest of those "nice people" George White had spoken about were introduced.

There was Dolores Del Rio. There was Ray Goetz, Irene Bordoni's first husband, who produced "Fifty Million Frenchmen." And Claire Windsor and Sally O'Neil, Richard Dix, Mary Brian, Ricardo Cortez, Laura LaPlante, Jack Dempsey and his wife, Estelle Taylor, Lew Cody, Richard Barthelmess and his wife. No party of my dreams could have listed a more notable gathering.

DAZZLED BY SPLENDOR

And I hadn't been in that party very long before I began to feel that my black taffeta evening gown and my black chiffon velvet wrap, which I had thought so beautiful, weren't so very, very much.

There was Miss Del Rio in a magnificent gown and a mink coat. There was Claire Windsor in a stunning ermine wrap. And there was "little me" not so gorgeously dressed as I first thought.

It was all a matter of comparison. What a strange part comparison plays in our lives!

But I tucked my envy away in a little recess of my heart and I said to myself: "Some day when you grow up you'll have clothes just as fine and you'll earn them, too."

I had no vision then of the days ahead—the days not so far distant when I should give up the opportunity to have pretty things for love of a man the underworld had marked for death.

If anybody had predicted that night, as I danced with Jesse Lasky and laughed with Adolph Zukor and chatted with Richard Dix, that I should renounce the glow and the warmth of Broadway for a cheap room in an Albany boarding house in order to be near Jack Diamond—that I myself should be indicted and arrested because of my association with him for something neither of us did—I should have chuckled.

But none of us knows what the future holds, which is a blessing.

SALLY NO HIGH HAT

One of the girls who impressed me most at that party was the happy-go-lucky, smiling, always-vivacious Sally O'Neil. She typified the modern girl to me.

She didn't high-hat anyone. She was very nice to me. She entered whole-heartedly into the spirit of the party and she sang. I have never admired her more, not even for her marvelous screen impersonations of East Side life, than I did that night when her hair was tousled in a gesture of indifference and she didn't even pretend to be better than any of the show girls.

The party was a revelation. Every celebrity in New York at the time was there, I guess, and it was all like a dream to me. I was afraid that when I got home and told mother about it she'd think I was fibbing.

We had a buffet lunch and there was more dancing and acts from many shows. At 2 o'clock I telephoned to mother, because I couldn't wait to tell her some of the things that impressed me most. It was 4 o'clock in the morning when I got home, tired but happy, and awoke mother from a sound sleep to sit on the side of her bed and tell her everything that had happened.

I was so tired I had a troubled sleep. The party kept running through my mind.

Mother awakened me the next day and told me I had to hurry to attend rehearsal of "Whoopee," but I couldn't get up quickly. I lay there in bed and my mind traveled back only a little distance to my days at the Prince School in Boston, when I sketched pictures of a lot of the folks I had mingled with at the party and read about them—and was awed.

I thought: "At last my dreams have come true." I was on the threshold of the career that had been in my dreams since ever I was old enough to dance and sing. I had no fear that the door to fame wouldn't swing wide at my touch.

It was about this time that my mother imparted a bit of wisdom that I never forgot, even though my romance with Jack Diamond led her to fear I had forsaken all her teachings.

We were walking home from the theater after a rehearsal one night and my mother cautioned me about certain girls who had tried to entice me on a party to which I had no desire to go.

"Girls of that type are more dangerous than evil-minded men," my mother said. "One drink in the company of certain persons and you might have no further control over your actions. Someone might dope a drink. It has happened to innocent girls before."

LOVE HER UNDOING

I said to mother: "Mama, I want to be a good girl."

I did want to be a good girl and I have always wanted to be a good girl. It was love and nothing else that drew Jack Diamond and me together. People who think he lavished gifts on me are mistaken. He never gave me anything in all the time I knew him except one radio set which he asked me to use to improve my dancing.

He was nearly broke when I met him and he had nothing left when I saw him in Albany last Friday night. We knew we couldn't marry, because he had a wife, but my loyalty never lagged through the months when Jack Diamond, referred to as a millionaire racketeer, was a man without a cent.

The day following that first big party of my life, I received orders at the theater to double on the Amsterdam Roof. That was a compliment and a thrill, for only eight of the girls in the show were picked to dance on the roof.

Barbara Weeks, now one of the 1931 Wampus baby stars, was one of us. Another was Barbara Hunt, who recently divorced Rex Lease, the cowboy star. And there was Agnes O'Loughlin, who came into the limelight through the Rudy Vallee suit. Others were Gladys Glad, who is in the Follies this year, and Martha Darby, who died from a terrible sunburn last summer.

Eddie Cantor was the star of the Amsterdam Roof show. Maurice Chevalier later took his place. Paul Whiteman's band furnished the music.

There were four rythmn boys with the band and one of them was none other than Bing Crosby, whose radio voice has won him great popularity, especially among the flappers.

ONE STEP UP

Bing was full of mischief and always playing tricks. He used to do a disappearing act that wasn't part of the show and Paul Whiteman, angry as could be, used to dispatch messengers to find him. Several times his jokes resulted in orders for dismissal, but Whiteman couldn't do without him and he always won his way back into favor and the good graces of the management.

My appearance in the roof show was another step forward in my stage career. Meeting all those prominent persons was an incentive to hard work to the end that I, too, would achieve fame. I realized that there were long hard weeks ahead—weary hours practicing my dance steps and acrobatics before each evening's performance.

But I didn't realize that between those weary hours of my rehearsing and the fame I sought waited Jack Diamond with a love I could not deny.

'KIKI'S' ROSES FOR DIAMOND

U. S. INVESTORS 'HOLD BAG' IN FOREIGN LOANS

Washington, Dec. 22 (INS)—The extent to which the $10,000,000,000 in foreign securities, floated in the United States in the past 10 years is diffused among small banks and investors will be sought by members of the Senate finance committee when it resumes its investigation Jan. 4.

Progressive and Democratic members of the committee assert that although the three great banking firms that have testified issued $3,285,000,000 in foreign bonds they hold practically none of these investments.

LOANS PASSED ALONG

The mass of securities, sold at high prices, was "unloaded" on the banks and investing public, in the words of the Senators. With their prices now enormously deflated, and several billions worth of them among the Latin American issues already in default, they create a staggering burden on the financial system of the country.

Of the three witnesses that have so far appeared before the committee, only one, Charles E. Mitchell, head of the National City Bank, testified that his firm held any of the foreign securities it had floated.

BANK PLAYED SAFE

These holdings, he added, amounted to slightly over $1,000,000, a small sum compared to the $1,-171,000,000 his organization issued.

Thomas W. Lamont, partner of J. P. Morgan & Co., said his bank held none of the $1,638,298,000 of foreign government bonds it handled. Likewise, Otto H. Kahn, partner of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., testified his firm had none of the $577,-750,000 in foreign securities it floated.

BOY KILLED IN SCOUT PLAY

Shelton, Ct., Dec. 22 (AP)—A "prop" revolver that contained one real cartridge brought death to Francis Russell, 20, "bad man" in a skit presented by Boy Scouts of the First Methodist Church.

Norman Smithson, 23, scout master, held the revolver with which Russell was accidentally shot and killed. He was absolved of criminal negligence by police, but was held in $1000 bonds pending a coroner's investigation.

Russell was shot in the neck during the closing scene of the skit. As he fell to the floor he cried:

"Hey, that was real!"

Police believed the bullet was placed in the revolver with some blanks by mistake.

Railways Post 15 Per Cent Wage Cut

Chicago, Dec. 22 (AP)—The "Big Four" brotherhoods of railway employes have been served by members of the Association of Western Railways with 30-day notices of a 15 per cent wage reduction.

Action was in conjunction with other railroads of the nation in line with a decision reached at a conference in New York. Under the railway labor act, the roads and employes will attempt to negotiate a settlement on wages. If necessary, the arbitration commission will undertake to settle the dispute.

Judge Lets American Countess Keep Title

Detroit, Dec. 22 (AP)—Countess Vera Grace de Chappedalaine has her title and her American citizenship, too. She told Federal Judge Simons she was born in Cadillac, Mich., and wanted her citizenship restored, but did not want to surrender her title.

Under the law persons seeking citizenship must renounce titles. But Judge Simons ruled she could keep the title as it was not recognized by any government and was only a social distinction.

Anything for the Home Folks

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

We understood this session in Washington was to be the big relief seance for home industries.

It was to be an all-American back scratching tournament for the local boys who made good everything but their margins.

It was a beautiful patriotic scenario. With the first scene cast in Europe.

Foreign diplomats got their moratoriums for their native lands. We wouldn't even be surprised if there is a rider to Frank Mahatma Gandhi's laundry.

American relief is slightly postponed unless the European relief is a round-about method of helping us.

They say the longest way round is the shortest way home, but they also say charity begins somewhere between the garage and the parlor stove.

We believe in helping the wayfarer. But 20 centuries have elapsed since the good Samaritan picked up the first hitchhiker on the road to Jericho and we've often wondered if he ever got the mule back.

'BUD' STILLMAN TO FLY IN NEW PLANE

Alexander Stillman, son of the millionaire banker and younger brother of 'Bud' Stillman, will fly home to Chicago possibly today, to spend the Christmas recess from Harvard, in a plane which was a Christmas present from his father, James A. Stillman.

Young Stillman, a freshman at Harvard, has long been an aviation enthusiast, will see the realization of his pet dream in the plane, an $8500 custom built model, which is due today.

TO VISIT MOTHER

He will go to Chicago to visit his mother, Mrs. Fowler McCormick, whose trouble with Stillman caused nation-wide attention.

The airplane, known as a Puss Moth, of a type little seen in this country, was to have been the wealthy banker's surprise Christmas present to his college student son, it was learned, but the surprise came to light when young Stillman, negotiating for the purchase of an airplane out of his allowance, encountered a surprising lack of co-operation from his father.

ENCLOSED CABIN

The boy finally surprised his father's secret, which was that an airplane had already been purchased for him but was being kept for a Christmas present.

The plane that Alexander Stillman had picked out to buy on the installment plan was an open cockpit Moth biplane which he could secure for one-quarter of what his father's gift is reported to have cost.

MRS. HOOVER LEADS TOYLAND SHOPPERS

MRS. J. J. DAVIS

Grandchildren of the President and First Lady to Share in Christmas Joys

Washington, Dec. 22 (AP)—Cabinet and diplomatic members joining the Christmas shopping throngs are buying about everything from Punch and Judy shows to woolly dogs.

Children of the official families and those who come from foreign lands will share delight on Christmas morning over toys which are more ingenious than ever.

Mrs. James Couzens, wife of the senator from Michigan, shopping for her eight little grandchildren, bought, among other things, toy telephones which can be connected by electric battery so they will actually work.

She also brought Punch and Judy shows, toy soldiers and cuddly plush animals—the latter for the youngest grandchild, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. William Jeffries Chewning.

Mrs. James J. Davis, wife of the Senator from Pennsylvania, did her Christmas shopping right after Thanksgiving so the stockings of "the five little J's," as her children are known, will be bulging.

Mrs. Hoover made a preliminary inspection of toyland, getting the most interesting things located so that she can show them to the grandchildren, Peggy Ann and Peter when they arrive.

PAULINA LONGWORTH

Little Paulina Longworth, daughter of the late Speaker of the House, will spend Christmas this year in Cincinnati with her mother and is expected to come to Washington shortly after the holidays for the remainder of the winter.

LIFE TERMS FOR HIJACKERS

Miami, Fla., Dec. 22 (AP)—For the second time in less than a week a hijacker has received a life sentence in a Miami court.

R. L. Roach of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., was given the maximum penalty following his conviction of armed robbery.

Last Wednesday Bob Rogers of Philadelphia was convicted of the same charge and sentenced to life imprisonment.

Rollins and Roach were charged with entering a bootlegger's house last March and taking 100 cases of liquor at pistol point.

FALL IS SICK, OR HE IS NOT

Santa Fe, N. M., Dec. 22 (AP)—Dr. E. W. Fiske, physician at the New Mexico State Prison, said today Albert B. Fall had undergone no serious change in health since his commitment to serve a year and a day on conviction of accepting a bribe.

Informed that Senator Bronson Cutting, Republican, of New Mexico, had told President Hoover he found the condition of the former Secretary of the Interior "bad" on a recent visit, Dr. Fiske indicated Fall apparently was as strong as he was when he entered the penitentiary last summer.

The President is understood to have indicated the matter was one for consideration of the federal parole board, before which a Fall petition has been filed. From the Justice Department came word the board would not act before January 1.

Aimee Aids Jobless

Los Angeles, Dec. 22 (INS)—Aimee Semple McPherson-Hutton today planned to open a second soup kitchen Christmas Day for the unemployed.

Elopers Sought in Connecticut

Middletown, Conn., Dec. 22 (INS)—A mother's wearisome search for her 15-year-old daughter, missing from Rockland, Me., since June 12, centered here today.

The girl, Evelyn Jenkins, eloped with George W. Heath of Camden, Me., last June, the mother told police here. Heath, she said, is 30 years old. A Rockland warrant for his arrest has been issued.

She Has Cash and Lot of Divorces

Reno, Nev., Dec. 22 (INS)—Mrs. Lucy Cotton Hann was in Reno today to establish legal residence preparatory to filing suit to divorce Charles Hann, Jr., a New York attorney.

Mrs. Hann was the widow of E. H. Thomas, New York publisher, who left her a large estate. After his death she married Col. L. G. Ament, one-time aide to President Hoover. They were divorced.

Two Killed at New Palace Blaze

Stuttgart, Germany, Dec. 22 (AP)—Fire broke out again today in the "Altes Schloss," a palace built in 1570, and two firemen were killed and 11 more injured.

Yesterday 30 firemen were hurt and most of the historic castle was destroyed. The damage is estimated at more than $1,000,000.

DAZED HEIRESS NEEDS S''OCK TO NERVES

Providence, R. I., Dec. 22—Only a severe shock to her shaken nerves will enable Virginia Penfield, 19, beautiful blonde heiress, of Columbus, O., to come out of the daze which shrouds four days of her life, doctors said today.

Twenty-four hours have passed since she was found unconscious and ill in the Hotel Narragansett here, but she is more of a mystery than ever.

Although she has recognized her father and remembers going from her school at Swarthmore, Pa., to Philadelphia, she recalls nothing more except "endless riding in trains," and the police are not at all convinced that they should drop the investigation.

"Why did she come straight to this city from Philadelphia?" is one of the questions which police oficials still consider unanswered.

Chief Inspector John Kelley pointed out that she kept her baggage together so that not an article was missing when she was found.

In her belongings, incidentally, was a large amount of cash, besides jewelry worth a considerable sum.

Unofficially the police intend to keep in touch with the girl and her father, who according to present plans are going to some spot near here for a Christmas holiday rest. Her father is Clare J. Penfield, Columbus merchant.

"We are in a curious position," said Inspector Kelley. "We havent' any real right to question this girl if she doesn't want to be questioned, but we aren't entirely satisfied that everything has been explained.

"If she came to some harm during her trip here, or if anything happened that will require police action later, we would much rather know all about it right now.

'The fact that her baggage was in good shape and intact does not indicate she had completely lost her mental faculties. If she came here to see any person or persons, we would like to know it."

QUIET REST PLANNED

The girl's father said Virginia had attained first place among her classmates at the Mary Lyon school at Swarthmore, Pa., but that this meant overstudy, which broke her down. Doctors gave the same explanation of her condition. *

Penfield said he felt that the trip to Columbus would be too much for her, coupled with the excitement of Christmas holidays among relatives, and he would pick out some quiet spot for a rest. He will remain with her.

Gandhi to Be Asked for War Declaration

London, Dec. 22 (AP)—A Daily Mail dispatch from Bombay today said Subhas Chandra Bose, Bengal Nationalist leader, declared at Nagpur today he would use all his influence at the Nationalist congress committee meeting next week to induce Mahatma Gandhi and others to "declare war" forthwith and resume the civil disobedience campaign.

Europe Still Fast in Winter's Grip

London, Dec. 22 (AP)—Winter showed no signs of relaxing its grip on Europe today and weather reports told of more snow and frost.

Heavy snowfalls and intense cold prevailed throughout southern Siberia, and wolves prowling around the towns and villages killed two soldiers. A bear killed a peasant.

In Court

Dr. Carl P. Andre, a West Virginia dentist, is on trial at Reno, Nevada, for the killing of Mrs. Martha Hutchinson of Fairmount, W. Va. The doctor is charged with tossing the woman from his fast moving automobile.

Brown Gives $300 to Newport Needy

Newort, R. I., Dec. 22—John Nicholas Brown, one of America's wealthiest young men, has donated $300 to the fund for the unemloyed here. The city is endeavoring to realize $50,000 for the needy and the social elite are contributing generously toward it.

Hitler's Finger Is Broken in Crash

Kyritz, Germany, Dec. 22 (AP)—Adolf Hitler, head of the German Fascists, broke his finger today in an automobile accident. The car ahead of his skidded into a tree and Hitler's car, in which Gen. Von Epp was a passenger, collided with it. Hitler was thrown against the windshield.

BEACON HILL

—by—

Betty Alden

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES MASON OF EXETER ST. ARE giving a dance at the Chilton Club in honor of Miss Ruth Read of New York on Wednesday evening, January 13. Miss Read is the daughter of Mrs. Lansing Read of New York, who is the daughter of Bishop Lawrence. She will not only come out socially, but ecclesiastically as well. Mr. Mason, although no relation of the Reads, is one of the pillars of Trinity Church, senior warden and very active in the business affairs of the church, which is so dear to the bishop, and the two families have been close friends for years. The charming maiden is a debutante of this season in Manhattan and very popular in the brightest social set.

MISS MOLLY WHEELER

* * *

Dr. and Mrs. George Powers of Beacon st. and their sub-debutante daughter, Miss Polly, have sailed for Nassau to spend Christmas in the Bahamas. Miss Polly attends Vassar and will be presented next year in Boston.

* * *

Another Vassar girl, a charming brunette, who has returned from college for the holidays, is Miss Eleanor Dunning, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Dunning of Brookline.

* * *

Plan for Beacon Hill Dance

INVITATIONS FOR THE BEACON HILL DANCE HAVE been received today. This zippy little affair for the subs and sub-subs is being patronessed by Mrs. John Bartol, who has a son, John, Jr.; Mrs. Edward C. Wheeler, wohse step-daughter, Molly, will keep the stags interested next year; Mrs. Arthur Woodworth, so that pretty Peggy Woodworth may be sure to be present; Mrs. Horace Morison, who is doing her bit for social Boston by presenting another daughter next season, Miss Mary; Mrs. James M. Hunnewell, whose son, Jimmie, is very attractive, and Mrs. Frances McElwain, with a daughter whose popularity has already been shown by her election to the presidency of her school. This will be a real Beacon Hill event and will be held at the Women's Republican Club.

* * *

OPEN HOUSE ON THE HILL will be the custom as usual Christmas Eve. Carol singing is all right and we like it sitting behind drawn curtains before an open fire but, Shades of Dickens, when you have to sit in your autor while two hours to go ten paces then park somewhere between the Manger Hotel and Somerville, walk through a biting wind over cobblestones up dingy, narrow streets, to eventually arrive at Louisburg sq. only to find that the carolers are just leaving and Mrs. Prudence Pennyfeather's house is closed, we prefer to stay at home and trim the Christmas tree. When anything becomes hard work we lay off it.

* * *

HOWEVER THAT WONT effect the warm greetings that will welcome the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Fuller of 34 Mt. Vernon st., or the James M. Hunnewells of 14 Chestnut st., or the Roger Warners and the Herbert Tuckers, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wellington and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Wellington will also dispense what they DO dispense in place of hot toddy at No. 13 Chestnut st. The Arthurs have closed their house, or rented it, we have not heard actually, and are doubling up for the winter at the Louis' domicile. This will be a real family party because the two Wellington boys married sisters and have lived happily ever after. All of their grandchildren—and they only number 11—will come in with their parents from the country to join this delightful family for Christmas. This includes the Thomas Cabots, the Palfrey Perkinses from Buffalo, and Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Ranney from Weston. What a Merry Yuletide that will be.

Mrs. Hunnewell

* * *

* * *

SOME LITTLE ATTEMPT has been made to reflect the spirit of the times in this column—no easy task in these dark days. For ourselves—ever optimistic—we propose to turn a blind eye to bank failures and the like in the hope that others may follow suit, and in the chatter of this page shut out for a few minutes the sound and strife of humanity. As for Peace on Earth, Goodwill to Men, we will leave that until stocks rise. We are still trying to dope out, is there a Santa Claus?

* * *

MERRY CHRISTMAS!

College Honor for Kirstein

Louis E. Kirstein, Boston merchant and philanthropist, who has been elected an honorary member of the Zeta Beta Tau, oldest and largest Jewish college fraternity, will be initiated into honorary membership on the closing afternoon of the 33d annual national convention, which will be held next Monday to Thursday at the Hotel Statler.

Mr. Kirstein will speak at the formal banquet Tuesday evening to which Mayor Curley and Gov. Ely have been invited.

The election of Mr. Kirstein has been sanctioned by the supreme council of the fraternity, headed by Judge William S. Evans, on his record as a national figure and "one of America's greatest Jews." It is the first time in 15 years that the honor has been awarded.

In the past such men as Judge Benjamin Cardozo of New York, the late Nathan Strauss and Adolph Lewisohn have been so honored.

Some of Mr. Kirstein's activities which figured in his selection are: Chairman of trustees of Boston Public Library; received national prominence by gift to Boston of Edward Kirstein Memorial Library; singled out by the American Hebrew as one of America's greatest Jews; chairman of the Boston Port Authority; vice-president of William Filene's Sons Co. and of the Lee Higginson Trust Co.; vice-president of the Boston unemployment committee; president of the Associated Jewish Philanthropies and its largest contributor.

Also vice-president of the national administration committee of the American Jewish Relief Congress; trustee of the Harvard Economic Society; member of the Economic League of the National Council; member of board of managers of Children's Hospital, and board of directors of Beth Israel Hospital, the Boston Dispensary and the Legal Aid Society; the Jewish Institute of Religion in New York and the Boy Scouts of America.

Botanist Will Quit Harvard

Dr. Carroll W. Dodge, famous botanist, has submitted his resignation from the Harvard University faculty to accept a professorship in the Henry Shaw school of botany at Washington University, St. Louis.

Dr. Dodge has been curator of the Farlow Reference Library and Herbarium of Cryptogamic Botany at Harvard since 1921. Under his direction the collections of lichens, mosses and fungi have nearly doubled.

He is widely known for his works on the fungus diseases of mankind and delivered the first course of lectures at Harvard in that field.

He has been chairman and secretary of the Botanical Society of America and national secretary of Gamma Alpha, a scientific honor fraternity. He is also a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi.

Bushnell New Head of Automobile Club

Robert T. Bushnell, former district-attorney of Middlesex County, was elected president of the Boston Automobile Club, local unit of the American Automobile Association, at a meeting of the board of governors in the Hotel Statler last night. Bushnell succeeds Allen H. Wood.

MISS MARY ELIZABETH STANWOOD IS HONORED AT LUNCHEON

Wellesley Club Scene of Fete for Post-Deb

A luncheon is being given today for Miss Mary Elizabeth Stanwood of Wellesley by her mother, Mrs. William E. Stanwood. This will take place at the Wellesley Country Club and is to be quite informal as she really made her debut last season, and is another post-deb who wishes to see her friends while home for the holidays.

Home for Holidays

Miss Stanwood attends Sarah Lawrence College, where she continues with her studies after several years at the Beaver Country Day School. Mrs. Frederick A. Stanwood, Miss Stanwood's aunt, receives with her niece and sister-in-law. The club is appropriately decorated with Christmas greens and poinsettias.

Mrs. E. Kent Swift is entertaining in honor of her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Robinson Swift, at a luncheon tomorrow at the Chilton Club. This is the second affair given for her this season, as she was formally presented early in the fall at their home in Whittinsville, at a tea-dance. This is really just a reunion with her many Boston friends, as she has been away at Smith College, and is just home for the vacation.

New York Party

Of course, everything in the way of debutante affairs centers in New York just now during this vacation, as there seems to be a general exodus in that direction from Boston and vicinity (especially vicinity) the minute college and school classes are over. Several of the season's buds went over for the Christmas dance at which Miss Fern Le Nais Salsbury of that city is to be presented by her mother, Mrs. Andrew Weeks Anthony. This takes place at Sherry's this evening, and will be attended by about 400 guests.

Among the Boston men who are assisting, in other words, on the floor committee (they don't have such things as ushers there), are the Messrs. Fred Anthony, a nephew of the deb's mother; Charles Williamson, Robert Simmons, Stanley Keyes, John Lindsay, David Jones, Donald Gillespie, John Browning, Frederick J. Day, Hugh McConnell and Ramon de Castro.

The Boston debs who went over for it included Miss Arsene De Rossett, Miss Elizabeth Stearns and Miss Lydia Fuller. Miss De Rossett's brother, Philip De Rossett, will also attend. They must tell us on their return just why a New York party seems so much better than a Boston one.

One Missing From White House Party

Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 22.—Santa will have to make an extra trip this year to bring his sack of good cheer to all of the Hoover family.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hoover, Jr., with Herbert, 3d, four, and Peggy Ann, six, left here last Friday to spend the holidays with President and Mrs. Hoover. But their other child, Joan, had to stay at home. She was told she was too little to travel yet, and sharp changes of weather are not good for little girls.

OTHER MEN'S IDEAS

From Vachel Lindsay, the late poet, author of "Every Soul is a Circus," etc.:

"I am nine-tenths Peasant and one-tenth Middle Class. The middle class is outside, like a skin. All inside is peasant. And the middle class is the curse.

"It makes me awkward at every kind of dollar-a-day labor the peasant hungers to do, and enjoys very much.

"In my time I have thinned onions, driven the bull rake to gather alfalfa, harvested wheat, stacked straw, dug ditches, rolled cotton bales, been shipping clerk, carried 100-pound sacks of cement from one end of the platform to the other.

"I have wheeled ashes, wheeled dirt, trimmed hedges, written handbills of religious meetings, peeled potatoes, painted signs, pushed hand-trucks full of merchandise, hoed corn, swept walks, weeded gardens and tried to split the hardest known kind of hedge-wood into firewood."

WILLING WORKERS FOR CHARITIES

MISS RICHARDSON

MISS NANCY ADAMS, a post-debutante daughter of the Zabdiel Boylston Adamses of Brookline, and Miss Barbara Richardson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Richardson of Brookline, as they appeared at a recent charity bazaar.

BOOKS—and, a Number of Things

By HAVELOCK ELLIS

"I am a girl, my age is 16, and I am Spanish—three things which I expose first as my recommendation to you." So writes a new correspondent from Madrid in fluent, though not always correct English.

The statement may arouse no surprise, though still it is not usual so to hear from Spain. But wait!

My "sincerely true friend and pupil," as she finally calls herself, proceeds in a matter-of-fact way to tell me that she has just qualified as a lawyer, though not yet of age to practice in public, that she is now working at philosophy and medicine, having selected these two additional professions to study during the three years interval before attaining the legal age, and that she also purposes to visit other countries, especially England, to ascertain their laws and customs.

She has been a Socialist since the age of 14 and is largely concerned to spread enlightened views among the workers of her country. This she does by delivering lectures, by journalism in the popular press, and by writing books.

She has published numerous books in the popular style and is engaged on a large one "which is now finishing itself." Her books are on eugenics, sexual education and birth control. She sends me one on the "Sexual Revolution," written in a clear, orderly, precise way, straightforward and simple and vigorous. She advocates such reforms—all new to Spain—as co-education, Lindsey's companionate marriage, health certificates before marriage, free divorce, maternal clinics, child guidance clinics, birth control clinics, sterlization of the unfit, with a number of other reforms.

In advocating these radical measures, which she does with all the confidence and conviction that youth today finds scope for in the more advanced countries, she shows herself extraordinarily well informed as to what is being proposed and carried out on these lines in other countries, especially England and the United States. It is the desire to gain yet further information on these matters which leads her to write to me.

* * *

I have long been a devout admirer of the women of Spain. More than 20 years ago I discussed the fine qualities which, at the best, they have proved able to display. They have often seemed to me of finer quality than the men, and I could understand how it was that a great dramatist of old Spain could employ the idea of "virility" in a non-sexual sense, and bestow it on a woman as freely as on a man. Women in Spain have for a long past come naturally to the front in all progressive movements, even when—as under conditions that have only lately ceased to exist in Spain—that involved much daring and some danger.

In old days, women in Spain possessed many rights which placed them in a better position than European women generally possessed, and, at all events in substance and spirit, they were able to maintain it in spite of the pressure upon them of the Spanish church and the Spanish state and Spanish society, with its semi-Oriental views of feminine seclusion. I ventured to foretell that when at last the pressure of this atmosphere was removed "Spanish women will play their part in directing the civilizing influences of the 20th century." All the same, this Spanish girl takes my breath away. She passingly mentions that she is considered "valiant." Yet even in the land of Don Quixote she seems too extravagant to be real. If it were not that she writes in so simple and matter-of-fact a way, I should be tempted to think she must be a magical illusion and that life really is, as the Spanish poet long ago declared, a dream.

* * *

It happens by a coincidence that I received today a query from a young American woman: Do I think, she asks, that the younger generation of our time will contribute good material to the world? Well! if it should come about that one per million of that generation proves able to face the world with the spirit and the equipment of my young Spanish lawyer (I am not assuming that the proportion will actually be so large), I have little fear about that generation.

THE VOICE OF Broadway

By Louis Sobol

DOWN MEMORY LANE!

With Joe Zelli, Famous International Restaurateur!

Born in Rome some time after the stabbing of Julius Caesar. My memory of the day is rather hazy. (My first day, not Caesar's—though it could be.)

The thrill of seeing Zelli outside my first restaurant opened way uptown at Madison and Forty-third, in 1904. Vernon Castle dropping in for a chat and a snack to eat after the performance, often staying until early dawn.

Listening to Maurice Costello (father of Dolores and Helene) predicting that the motion pictures would some day rival the legitimate theater in popularity if Vitagraph continued to make the same forward strides in photography, and his complaints about the number of reporters who plagued him for stories—as many as three interviews a month. (Adolph Menjou was telling me 20 years later of how he set an hour aside every day for group interviews and in that way managed to see six or seven reporters daily.)

Raymond Hitchcock singing "All Dressed Up and No Place to Go" for the customers.

London: The Astor Club on Lyle st, immediately behind the Empire Theater, and I made the transatlantic jump (it took a couple of weeks then for the hop) in 1911, followed closely by all the American actors who had been my friends in New York and who established the Astor Club as their English headquarters.

Accustoming myself to fogs, tea and such strange names as George Roby and Ethel Levey, who turned out to be headliners every bit as gifted as American artists. Meeting them and liking them all.

The little Scotchman with the outlandish canes who was such good company, and on the whole so good hearted, that his friends never minded paying the check—Harry Lauder, then making his first big hit at the Tivoli Theater.

The other little fellow—this time an Englishman, who was so hilariously funny in a music gallery skit in Billy Reeves' revue which was later utilized for one of the funniest motion pictures ever filmed. Even without the moustache and shoes you couldn't miss Charlie Chaplin.

Changing from military to culinary uniform for the Trianon Restaurant in Tours in 1919 when the town was packed with American soldiers waiting for the call to return home. Meeting the higher officers over the bar and finding them all good fellows once they were free of the need to command. Chatting with a Lieut. Murphy who on the first drink held a machine gun single handed for an hour during the battle of Chateau-Thierry, and after the fourth drink winning the war. Changing the title of the establishment from Trianon to Zelli's American Bar; a name that since has gone round the world.

The charming young lady who assisted me in the all-important role of cashier, destined to become Madame Zelli, the admired of all Paris. Or do I become boastful? That is a husband's right. Are you reading, baby doll?

Jack Donahue doing his famous perspiration dance night after night at the constant request of the patrons. A grand comedian whose wit was all but obscured by the inspired dexterity of his feet.

Chevalier inquiring about that great country, America, and wondering whether he could ever speak English well enough to get by over there.

The Talmadges in the heyday of their popularity, Norma and Constance, as well known in Paris as in New York, being followed by crowds of admirers wherever they went. They said that only among friends at Zelli's could they relax and be themselves.

Florence Mills and that other Florence who spurned the mediocrity of a surname, two of the greatest singers it has ever been my privilege to hear.

The Duncan sisters, always gay, always happy. One of the finest teams I have ever known, fresh from their triumphs in "Topsy and Eva," to win hearts and plaudits at the Empire Music Hall.

Entertaining 20 American mayors in Paris and watching the dry Mayor Porter of Los Angeles enjoy the "prohibited" sauces. The farewell party to the "Maire Americaine" lasting until boat-train time.

The thrill of revisiting New York in 1929 and becoming readjusted to the new geography. Making my American theatrical debut on January 19, 1930, as Joe Zelli in "Fifty Million Frenchmen," and being met at the stage door by an excited young lady who told me that she never saw such marvelous makeup. I was the exact counterpart of the original.

The premiere of "Papavert," with all Paris clamoring for admission to the Theater Apollo. Introducing the play from the stage, a hundred times more nervous than the youngest tyro in the mob scenes.

Girl-About-Town

By ALYCE SIEMENS

NAMES-ABOUT-TOWN

Folks love to have Banker Rupert Marriers at their homes, not solely because he's such good company, but also because he can mix the most gorgeous mixtures, which slip down SO easily . . . If memory serves, Rupert has a brother Al who was once an All-American back . . . Maybe Rupert will finish up an All-American mixer . . . Brookline's Frank (You're Driving Me Crazy) Craven—not the stage star—does a hearty job of "Mamma No Want No Pease, No Rice" at the Charles River Country Club with George Muir, the Newton contractor, harmonizing . . . It's great when you're in the mood to hear a hearty job being done on "Mamma No Want, etc." . . . Otherwise you hear it anyhow . . . The golfers tell me that "Josh" Bodfish wears high shoes so that he can make the corners fast . . . Linus Travers, WNAC's production manager, never saw a vaudeville act until he was a freshman at college . . . And was as nervous as possible when he made his first appearance on a nightclub floor Sunday night at the Boston Evening American Basket Fund benefit at the Grove . . . A certain cop, now a Hub police captain, will be made a deputy within a month or so . . .

SNOOPING AND TELLING

Anne O'Brien, wife of State Supervisor of Aircraft Bob O'Brien, has had many hours in the airs with her husband, and has even been at the controls while he kept sharp watch on things . . . But Bob, nevertheless, does not approve of women as aviators, especially when they happen to be a woman named Mrs. Bob O'Brien . . . So he says Anne isn't likely to do any solo-flying . . . But it will be different with his eight-year-old son, who went up when only six months old . . . Bob will make a pilot out of him . . . The Santa Claus at R. H. White's has accumulated quite a neat sum in pennies and nickels, given to him by kids who wanted to show Santa they were Good Fellers . . . He's decided to turn the money over to the Boston American's Christmas Basket Fund. What large hotel had a house-count of 138 one night last week, though the hostelry can accommodate 500? . . . Morton Downey has given Barbara Bennett a Hispano-Suiza and a liveried chauffeur for Christmas . . . Also a synthetic ruby bracelet like the three that Mrs. Dudley Field Malone has . . . Outside of that, Morton won't do much for Barbara this Yuletide . . . And by the bye, we're betting two to one the Hispano, the chauffeur, and Barbara will be waiting every night outside C. B. S. headquarters . . .

PICKUPS

When Mary Garden checked out of the local hotel where she stayed this last time, she sent her retinue on to the station ahead in taxicabs, while she herself climbed into Eleanora Sears' depot-wagon and rode in state (?) to the train in that vehicle . . . That assistant manager of a Boston hotel, and that beauty who works in Slattery's (where beauties abound, incidentally), are already furnishing the apartment they will occupy when springtime brings them to the altar . . . . Allston's Lee Field's entertained four girls from Child's at the American's Basket Fund cabaret at the Grove Sunday . . . . Billy Payne and Danny Cavanaugh were debating the other evening as to which of them has the best Irish brogue . . . . If quantity of conversation counts in deciding the winner of such a contest, Billy was victor. . . .

BASSINET DITTIES DUE

Ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald's son Tom expects a cradleful at his home around New Year's . . . Bob Nevins of the Cocoanut Grove orchestra is looking forward to another house inhabitant next month . . .

SPEAKING RIGHT UP

Two college boys of the smart-aleck stripe breezed into Schrafft's near Arlington st, and when Ruth Sarwin came to take their order gave it to her in French . . . It took some of the wind out of their widespread sails when Ruth replied to them in beautiful French, which made their schoolboy parlay-vousing sound rather silly . . . Ethel Barrymore was staying at a local hotel recently while Edna Ferber and George Kaufman (who wrote that "Royal Family" play supposed to be a travesty on the Barrymore clan) were quartered under the same roof . . . Wonder what that radio editor did with the ONE box of cigars which a large group of male singers gave him after he got them on the air in a large way . . . He didn't throw it at them—we know that much . . . But why he didn't we couldn't tell . . .

PLEADING FOR OVERSHOES

Can you imagine a boy of seven pleading for Santa to bring not toys, but a pair of overshoes for himself, a pair of rubbers for his little brother, and a pair of stockings for his wee baby sister? . . . "To keep her feet warm because sometimes they get awful blue and cold" . . . Most kids of seven want Santa to fetch them candy, books, games and toys . . . But this little lad wants only overshoes, so he can get out in the fresh air and build up after a long illness . . . and "to play like the other kids around here do" . . . Just writing Santa for necessities this kid is . . . Think it over, you folks with enough money to buy toys for YOUR little ones and make sure that you spend your Christmas Day realizing that you have not forgotten to do your bit toward helping some of Boston's poor . . . With only two days left why not make the spirit of Christmas giving perfect in your hearts by sending off a check right now to the little boys with ill-shod feet, and babies with hungry mouths, will share SOME of the comfort that will be yours on Friday . . .

GEORGE GERSHWIN'S MUSIC WINS HIGH PRAISE

His Work Is of Lasting Material

By MOSES SMITH

Thanks to George Gershwin and his musical scores, of which "Of Thee I Sing," now at the Majestic, is an excellent example, we have again arrived at a time when the music of so-called musical plays can be taken seriously. This implies two things: first, that there was such a time previously, to which the remarkable output of Victor Herbert bears ample testimony; secondly, that since his day the music, with an occasional exception, has been, to say the least, ephemeral.

* * *

It is not that our composers for the lighter stage have not written catchy tunes, but that from the very nature of these tunes they were bound to be mouthed by millions and quickly discarded. They were not the stuff of great music, nor even of fine music. In those cases where they were, the composer was handicapped by a lack of technical facility in doing them justice.

Now Gershwin, judged by his latest work (to say nothing of his previous music, much of which is of high calibre), has the musicianship and the right kind of musical mind for producing more lasting meterial. Perhaps we credit him with more knowledge of the orchestra, let us say, than he possesses; it is even possible that he is not responsible for the orchestration (which is not exceptionally good); such things happen often in the theater. But the quality of his musical thinking, as shown in the melodies he employs and his development of this material, is of such an order as previous American composers have not shown.

When Gershwin writes a fine tune, as he did notably in "The Man I Love" several years ago, one of the outstanding qualities is its truth to type. His jazz is what musicians call idiomatic, the melody and the language in which it is couched are indistinguishable. You cannot imagine one without the other.

"Of Thee I Sing" is full of such examples. Here is a play at times rowdy in character, at other moments sophisticated in the present American fashion. In fact, it is hard to imagine how the lines could be more representatively American. To the excellent lyrics of his brother, Ira, George Gershwin has set music thoroughly in character. The subject is felicitous (Victor Herbert was not so fortunate in his libretti), and so is the music. The brilliant book of George Kaufman and Morrie Ryskind and the scintillating lyrics of Ira Gershwin contain no more pointed satire than George Gershwin's music. If we must cite chapter and verse, listen to the march with its echoes of Sousa or, better still, the quasi-theme-song, "Of Thee I Sing," with its delicious hodge-podge of sentimentality and "hot" jazz.

Heroism Is Keynote of Film

By HARRIS MORGAN

The courage of a Horatius-at-the-bridge motivates "Thirteen Men and a Girl," German film featured on the Fine Arts screen this week. The picture has dialogue, evidently "dubbed in," and in the king's English, as the voices used for the process are evidently those of Britishers.

The story deals with the heroism of a dozen soldiers, under orders to hold a bridge at all costs. The lens searches them out in their perils, and makes realistic the doom that faces them. The camera turns psychologic in making clear their reactions of mind and soul to their surroundings and coming death which enwreathes them all at the end, along with the girl in the cast.

It is a grim story, dependent upon its technique to hold the eye and grip the interest. Its actors, topped by the well-known Conrad Veidt, are true performers; it is unfortunate the dialogue was added, for the picture would have had even greater power as silent drama.

For companion the UFA production has that picturesque Hindu film, "Shiraz." It can well stand the second showing, and it proves again an enjoyable treat. Its Taj Mahal, its natives, its spirit, its pictorial strength, give it a high standing.

Gala Bill at Scollay for Holidays

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

With a good bill on stage, the Scollay this week gets an excellent start on the holiday patronage, the first day bringing out folks in large numbers. They seemed very pleased, as their applause indicated.

Eddie Court contributes a fine number to the vaudeville. His offering is "Rhapsody in Rhythm," which boasts not only expert dancing, but which also has color and class.

Fun is the cue for Chase and Latour, whose rendezvous for "dates" with their "sweeties" is made the scene of hilarity. They go over very well. Al Haig, Olympic swimming champion, is another who gets a big hand.

There is another dance unit that deserves high praise. This is the Marcelle and Williams outfit; costumes, settings and performance are very fine. Another turn brings variety—George Lyons with harp and voice. A couple of Negroes, Glenn and Jenkins, evoke many laughs with their broom-pushing act. Monroe and the Adams Sisters are clever jugglers.

On screen is "His Woman," with Gary Cooper and Claudette Colbert.

Whenever I look at Darryl Zanuck I am reminded of the governor in a well known play who was very forceful and who accomplished a lot and every time he appeared every one said, "He is little but oh, my." That Zanuck person is a fiend for work. In fact, they had to scare him within an inch of his life when he was sick or else he'd have gone to the office with a fever of 103. They told him that he'd never live to get back home and with Darryl's Virginia weeping he decided to [illegible] in the crib in the nursery and listen to his doctor. He chose "Saturday's Children" by Maxwell Anderson. Then he wired Dan Gibney to do the adaptation. Yep, as I said, Darryl is back in earnest.

EMBERS OF LOVE — The Supreme Romance of the Year — By Hazel Livingston

GREATER BOSTON NEWS — BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN — SECOND SECTION

THIS IS LIFE

BIG THINGS THAT YOU'VE KNOWN AND FORGOTTEN REVIEWED IN BOOK

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

IF YOUR LIFE DEPENDED on it, could you tell who [illegible] Collins was? Or the Wheaton iceman? Who died first, Harding or Wilson? Who was Raymond Orteig? Or Jane Gibson?

ROBERT E. ROGERS

And yet within a brief decade you knew these names and these facts perfectly well. I know of nothing that supports better Henry Adams' famous thesis of the increasing acceleration of history, with its corollary of increasingly quick oblivion, than a book I have been browsing through these past few days. It is called "Only Yesterday" (Harper Bros.), and it is written by Frederick Lewis Allen, former editor of Harper's Magazine.

Now that I remind you of these names, of course, you remember them. The young Kentuckian imprisoned in Mammoth Cave for 18 days and finally taken out dead. The one and only Red Grange, now hardly mentioned in the papers that were full of his exploits. Harding died in August, 1923, and Wilson early in 1924. The man who paid Lindbergh $25,000 for his famous flight. The pig woman of the Hall-Mills murder case.

Long Skirts and No Prohibition

Nothing is more interesting than social history, but most social history is written so long after the events that much is forgotten, omitted or muddled and so not very helpful. And yet the record of every-day events is the scaffolding upon which we are beginning to learn, history must be written. Mark Sullivan in his three volumes, entitled "Our Times," has told in considerable detail the story of the new America from 1900 down to Wilson's administration, and more volumes may be expected. But Mr. Allen has taken a leaf out of Mark Sullivan's book, as he acknowledges, and has written for us, who still are able to check up on his accuracy, the many high points of the extraordinary decade which has just closed. It is an invaluable volume not only as a permanent record, but a moral reminder to all of us not to do it again.

One of the points that Mr. Allen delights in making is the comparatively brief existence of many names, customs and things which we take absolutely for granted. With this in mind he begins his book on a day in May, 1919, when the war is safely over but the changes that followed it have not yet come into being. By describing the typical day of a typical couple he shows us how many of our habits are less than a decade old. So swift is acceleration nowadays.

There was no prohibition, of course, in May, 1919. We do remember that, since the question is much on our minds. But it was only a few months away. Women still wore longish skirts and petticoats. There were no flesh-colored stockings and almost no bobbed hair. Bathing suits included tunic and stockings. Beauty parlors were few.

No Lindy, Babe or Dempsey, Then

Vitamins had not been heard of, calories were still the latest thing. There were no tabloid papers. Babe Ruth and Jack Dempsey were still in obscurity. Lindbergh was unheard of. Even Alcock and Brown had not yet blazed his trail. A motor car might be a Maxwell and certainly was not a Chrysler. Ford was still manufacturing Model T. Cars were rather high off the ground. Only 10 per cent of cars manufactured in 1919 were closed cars. The self-starter was a rare luxury. There were only one-third as many cars on the road as in 1929 and the automatic signal light did not exist.

The stock market was bullish in 1919, with a record day of 1,500,000 shares, a long way from the 16,000,000-share day of 1929. Jazz bands had just come in and tea dances, but Scott Fitzgerald had not written "This Side of Paradise" and explained the flapper to a shocked public, and the sensation of Lewis' "Main Street" and "Babbitt" was still a few years away. Cocktail parties were unheard of and a woman drinking at a bar was still a shocking exception to the rule.

Only half as many cigarettes was consumed in 1919 as in 1929. Auction Bridge was played, but not Contract. Mah Jong and Miniature Golf were years away and no one had heard of Mr. Culbertson.

In the film houses they were viewing Charlie Chaplin in "Shoulder Arms," Theda Bara, and Griffith's "Broken Blossoms" with Lillian Gish and Barthelmess. In the theaters it was "Friendly Enemies," "Three Faces East," "Dear Brutus" with William Gillette. The Theater Guild had yet to make its first production. There was, of course, no sound in pictures.

Things They Were Thankful for!

And, most important of all, there was no radio! Its first real broadcast was to be from KDKA on Harding's election night. The author continues:

"One more word about Mr. and Mrs. Smith and we may dismiss them for the night. Not only have they never heard of radio broadcasting, they have never heard of Coue, the Dayton Trial, crossword puzzles, bathing beauty contests, John J. Raskob, racketeers, Teapot Dome, the American Mercury, Sacco and Vanzetti, companionate marriage, brokers' loan statistics, Michael Arlen, the Wall st. explosion, confession magazines, the Hall-Mills case, radio stock, speakeasies, Al Capone, automatic traffic lights, or Charles A. Lindbergh."

Think for a moment how much is implied in certain of these simple words, how many of those ideas are inextricably imbedded today in our national life, and you will be surprised at how great changes a very few rapid years have sufficed to bring about.

And so the book goes on. You will read the inside story of Mr. Harding's administration; the toboggan down which youthful morals and manners shot in those giddy years; the return to idealism with the news of Lindbergh's flight; the revolt of the highbrows. You will remember things you have preferred to forget; the nation-wide heresy hunt of so-called "reds" and "bolsheviks" led by Atty.-Gen. Palmer and seconded by all the scared old women of both sexes; the disgrace of the Ku Klux Klan; the preposterous fantasy of ballyhoo advertising and promotion; the Florida land boom and collapse; and, finally, in the most vivid and exciting chapter in the book, the famous "Coolidge prosperity" bull market of 1928 and 1929, the financial orgy at the peak, and the terrible days of autumn when the bottom dropped out of the decade.

The more you read "Only Yesterday" the more you understand what is going on today. For the pendulum that is history never stops swinging. The 1920-1930 swing was high, wide and handsome, and our present acceleration in the opposite direction is correspondingly sure. It's a great book!

Indemnity Bonds Asked for Trust Companies

SAWYER FILES BILL TO FORCE PROTECTION

Scoring [illegible] Representative Roland D. Sawyer of Ware today filed a bill with the House of Representatives to require large indemnity bonds of trust companies in the State.

[illegible] bond [illegible] absence of [illegible] to protect the depositors.

"The savings banks and a great majority of the trust companies are absolutely sound," Sawyer said as he filed the bill.

"But there are a few trust companies which have been run by politicians who have no more business with a bank charter than I have with a steam fitter's license.

"My bill would provide that all new trust companies and any of the closed ones that re-open, to file an indemnity bond equal to twice the size of the capital stock.

"The savings department bond should be a yearly affair until the guarantee fund set aside for depositors reaches the maximum of five per cent. The amount of the bond could be fixed by the bank commissioner.

"It would protect us from calamities in the future."

Hospital Employes Aid Needy Families

Efforts of employes of Peter Bent Brigham Hospital have furnished 40 needy families with Christmas dinners.

BOSTONIANS---HAVE YOU DONE YOUR BIT?

Into hundreds of homes where need is known, this type of basket shall be delivered this week by the Boston Evening American Basket Fund. The kind hearted men, women and children of Boston and environs have made this possible. What joy it will bring to needy men—anxious mothers and underfed children. It isn't too late for you to help.

No wonder Loretta O'Brien smiles as she looks over the array of good things to eat. Yes, every basket will have a turkey in it. Then read what else goes to hungry folks: One peck potatoes, 2 lbs. onions, 1 doz. oranges, 2 cans peas, 2 cans corn, 2 loaves bread, 2 lbs. sugar, 1 jar preserves, 1 lb. hard candies, 1 lb. mixed cookies and 1 lb. coffee.

Under this agreement the respondent company has collected excessively large amounts as liquidated damages or as fines, as they are designated upon the books of the company. PASSING THE TITLE LIKE LOVING CUPS

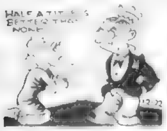
By HELEN ROWLAND

[illegible]

They are passing titles along out in Hollywood—and everywhere else—just like loving cups.

[illegible]

If one imported prince and one guaranteed pre-war marquis can make princesses and marquises out of five or six American girls THAT is true depression economy! Sharing your title is a magnanimous gesture.



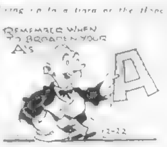
HALF A TITLE IS BETTER THAN NONE
12-22

[illegible]

Titles, like yachts and country homes, are sheer extravagance. It's not so much the initial expense as the upkeep, and very few women can afford the upkeep for long.

[illegible]

Living up to a title is like living up to a tiara or the Hope Diamond. It takes a lot of expensive clothes and liveried servants, and a great mental effort to remember to broaden your A's, slide your R's and to refrain from getting chummy with the butler.



REMEMBER WHEN TO BROADEN YOUR A'S
A
12-22

[illegible]

Titles, like heirlooms and antiques, are just as good second-hand or third-hand as first-hand. Their value increases with age and association. And any girl would be proud to be able to brag that she owned a title that once belonged to a famous cinema star.

Dempsey, on his exhibition tour, is meeting the best men the promoters can secure, asking no favors of these men and giving them the privilege of hitting him on the chin and knocking him bow-legged if they are able.

Hunt, Retzlaff Among Tiger's Foes

Bearcat Wright, [illegible] Babe Hunt, Charley Retzlaff, Al Lasky, George Neron and a score of the [illegible] are among those Dempsey has met in the past few months.

You couldn't get some of our so-called first flight heavyweights in the ring with opponents of this calibre for good sized purses, yet Dempsey takes em on very casually and tells them to do the very best they can.

Many years ago old John L. Sullivan inaugurated the custom of [illegible] man who could stick with him four rounds, but Sullivan never met opponents like this. In his pre-championship days Dempsey also made an all-comers tour. Most of those he met were strictly hit-outs.

Dempsey Hopes to Fight Into Condition

Dempsey's theory is that by engaging in real fights he will gradually work himself into physical condition for a [illegible]

[illegible] trail ever laid out for himself as tough a campaign as this. Dempsey argues that he is meeting a [illegible] every couple of rounds and this is bound to do him good, to which I reply that it might be beneficial to a young fighter with his future before him but that it isn't so good for an old gladiator with his future behind him.

I mean to say if Dempsey is getting ready for one fight, and that fight the rematch with Max Schmeling, he doesn't need to meet any [illegible] other than the [illegible] of Schmeling.

Foes Likely to Try to Kayo Mauler

He has to be on the alert every instant he is in the ring with the kind of opponents he is meeting. Any one of them might decide to win a little glory overnight by pegging a large smack to the chin of the old mauler and spreading him over the canvas.

In fact, several have already so pegged, but it happens that the mauler's chin is harder than a money lender's heart, and nothing has come of these efforts.

He takes great pride in giving the public a run for its money on this tour, and in maintaining a reputation as the greatest drawing card the game has ever known.

He is playing to packed houses. He is a wonder. That's all. Just a [illegible] wonder.

Strack is six feet one inch tall and weighs 220 pounds. He doesn't carry an ounce of superfluous flesh, but he does pack plenty of dynamite in his wrestling attack.

Strack is the only wrestler who has proved a little bit too tough for Gus Sonnenberg. Perhaps if Sam Smith hadn't come to the aid [illegible] the warrior would have beaten Gus in the [illegible] at the Arena. As it was, Strack won a fall, while one of Gus' falls was gained on a foul. MARKET VIEWS OF BROKERS

Whitney & Elwell—On weakness in the next few days, we feel that purchases are justified, first because of the probability of higher prices in the immediate future and second because the time may have come when it is more speculative to hold off further than it is to buy near present levels.

Shields & Co.—There is no news of importance scheduled for the balance of the week but there is always the possibility of unfavorable rumors or news from abroad. As a result a very narrow quiet trading market appears in prospect with little incentive for buying.

Russell, Miller & Co.—Judging the market from a technical standpoint it would be reasonable to anticipate further selling tomorrow and probably completion of the so-called secondary reaction in today's or Wednesday's market.

Hornblower & Weeks — The market is entitled to lose one-half to two-thirds of the ground gained on the rally in the nature of a secondary reaction and there should be ample opportunity to re-enter the market on a trading basis on evidence that constructive operations are to be resumed again.

STOCKS HIGHER IN WALL ST. DEALINGS

New York, Dec. 22—Important shares generally moved upward in trading on the New York Stock Exchange today, after a steady opening.

Gains of a point or more were soon sprinkled through the active issues, while Auburn Auto staged another of its snappy performances, quickly mounting over five points.

U. S. STEEL HIGHER

U. S. Steel, the old bellwether of the market, advanced a point. At the same time gains of a point or more appeared for such issues as Consolidated Gas of New York, Corn Products, North American, New York Central, American Can, Allied Chemical and American Tobacco "B."

Standard Oil of New Jersey reduced its loss to a minor fraction, following the transfer of a block of 10,000 shares. Federal Mning & Smelting jumped 4 points. American Telephone was up 2 points.

Quiet strength prevailed in the bond market. Missouri Pacific and National Dairy issues were up a point or so.

The wekely statement of reporting member banks was for the period covering the treasury financing which accounted for a large increase in government security holdings. Security loans declined $19,000,000.

SECONDARY REACTION

Brokerage house commentators pointed out that Monday's decline in stockah ad completed what was approximately a secondary reaction and that support points would be a matter of importance. Dullness over the remainder of the holiday week would be in line with past experience.

The copper agreement, it was estimated in the trade, would allow the withdrawal of about 25,000 tons monthly from the huge surplus stocks. However, there was some doubtt hat the red metal prices would show substantial strength until the curtailment program began to show results.

Sterling was firmer, cables opening a cent higher at $3.40.

Enough Stock Exchange seats were placed in the market in the past few months to bring the price down to the lowest since 1925, but in spite of the lower valuation Wall Street has been heartened by the recovery of $10,000 from the extreme low price of $122,000 touched last week. The December decline in seat prices so far was from a top level of $157,000 and between the extreme prices nine memberships were sold. In December last year the price dropped from $250,000 to $186,000 on the transfer of 23 seats. In a bear cycle seats normally are sold more freely in December because of firm consolidations and retirements.

CURB MARKET IS IRREGULAR

New York, Dec. 22—Despite indications of good underlying support, the majority of curb trading favorites obtained but indifferent success in attempts to move higher today, and price changes for the market as aw hole were generally irregular in character.

The utility group ruled irregularly lower on the average with slight improvement in American Superpower, Consolidated Gas of Baltimore, and United Light and Power offset by generally unimportant declines in Middle West Utilities, Niagara Hudson Power, and Electric Bond and Share.

Cities Service was inclined to be a trifle easier, sagging ⅛ to 5⅛, on relatively light turnover. Oils were somewhat steadier, after their weak spell late in yesterday's session. Standard of Indiana, after an early dip to duplicate its low for the year tightened up to 14, for a nominal gain, while Standard of Kentucky was ⅜ higher.

Specialties gave an erratic account of themselves, with losses predominating. A. O. Smith with a 2 point dip, and Deere with a loss of 1⅛ points showed more than average weakness.

Investment trusts backed and filled quietly at approximately unchanged levels.

Servel to Pay $7 on Pfd. for 1932

Directors of Servel Co., Inc., declared a dividend of $7 on the preferred stock for the year 1932, beginning Feb. 1. Dividend is payable quarterly.

Net profit for the year ended Oct. 31 was $1,067,397 after interest, taxes, charges, etc. In the preceding year the company reported for the 10 months ended Oct. 31 a net profit of $559,603.

ADOLF GOBEL, INC.

J. E. T. Lexington—A description of Adolf Gobel, Inc., would be appreciated. Please describe fully.

Ans.—Adolf Gobel, Inc., is a meat packer. Following incorporation in its present form in 1926, it initiated a rapid expansion program. Through acquisition of established concerns, financed mostly by stock issuance, it expanded its sales territory from the immediate vicinity of New York to Washington, Boston, and to Mason City, Iowa, and other Middle Western centers. However, problems of coordinating these units, and unfavorable hog markets have retarded the development of adequate earning power. Operating expenses are conspicuously high, and fixed charges thus far have proved burdensome.

Net income for the 44 weeks ended November 1, 1930, equaled $0.22 a common share, compared with $0.30 a share in the 1929 calendar year. Adverse conditions during the 36 weeks ended July 11 last, resulted in a loss of $306,048, or $0.71 a share, but increased realization of operating economies in the final one-third of the period permitted profits of $0.10 a share for interval.

Sizeable inventory losses likely will be necessary at the year-end, because of the weakness of pork prices, and a final deficit for the full 13 months is anticipated, says Standard Statistics. The new management (placed in control last March) has instituted a rigorous economy program.

Canadian Control of Buying Is Sought

Toronto, Ont., Dec. 22 (AP)—J. A. McLeod, president of the Canadian Bankers' Association, has reached the conclusion that immediate steps should be taken through banks, brokers, trust companies and investment houses to control, insofar as they might be able, the purchase abroad of securities by residents of Canada.

The statement by McLeod, circulated throughout Canadian financial circles yesterday, drew immediate action from the Montreal Stock Exchange, which distributed copies of the statement to its members and urged them to govern themselves accordingly.

In Toronto Premier George S. Henry revealed that the next loan sought by Ontario will be in the form of a domestic bond issue and will not be floated in a foreign bond market.

Spokesmen for most of the Toronto branches of New York brokerage firms gave assurance of their full support to the scheme, but pointed out they thought the present adverse rate of exchange on the Canadian dollar was sufficient deterrent to the buying of United States investments by Canadians.

Progress Is Made in Drive for New Uses of Cotton

Marked progress in the campaign of the American cotton industry to educate the rest of the world in new uses of the staple is reported by George A. Sloan, president of the Cotton-Textile Institute, which is sponsoring the movement.

One of the outstanding recognitions of the progress made in the styling and designing of American cotton textiles, Sloan points out, is to be found in the recent acceptance by the Victoria and Albert Museum in London of a group of decorative cottons made in this country.

The result is that requests for "Swatch Books" of representative styled cottons published each season by the Institute have come from England, France, Germany, Switzerland, Sweden, Australia and Japan.

A "new uses" exhibit showing other newly-developed adaptations of various cotton fabrics for apparel as well as for household and industrial purposes was assembled by the Institute, and during the current year was sent on an exhibition tour of textile centers in England, France, Holland, Switzerland, Egypt and Spain.

Following experiments with cotton fabrics in the construction of roads in South Carolina and Texas, this use for cotton has been subjected to a thorough investigation and study on the part of governmental or private interests in Spain, Germany, India, Egypt, Italy and England, Sloan declares, pointing out that in England an actual construction for test purposes was completed this year in Lancashire.

COPPER PACT ANNOUNCED

New York, Dec. 22 (INS)—Complete agreement on curtailment of the world's copper production to about 26½ per cent of rated capacity by producers of 90 per cent of the world's output was formally announced today by the Copper Exporters, Inc.

In addition, an agreement in principle was reached to modify certain rules and regulations of Copper Exporters, Inc., the selling agency board for the industry. With the revision of foreign selling rules it was stated that the new Rhodesian production, and several Canadian and Southern American mines, not heretofore members, are expected to join Copper Exporters, Inc.

Both the agreement on curtailment and the new rules in regard to foreign selling, will become effective on Jan. 1, next.

The announcement explains that ther es no authority to enforce the reduced rate of production, nor is there any restraint that prevents any individual action that may be taken by any company. When the new rules for copper exportes have ben formally adopted, they will be filed promptly with the Federal Trade Commission, the statement said.

LAST MINUTE SUGGESTION FOR SHOPPER

Does your husband like to sing in the bath tub? Then your last minute Christmas worry is at an end. Buy him one of these Baritone Torches for him to hold aloft while rendering ballads. This torch comes with a convenient electric plug, which, when short circuited with the bath water, instantly stops all singing. Note the long handle, which makes it easy to pass the torch from one member of the family to the other, on Saturday night.

WOMAN KILLED AS BIG STORM PERILS LINER

Glasgow, Dec. 22—A New York woman was fatally injured and 35 other passengers less seriously hurt when a storm struck the Anchor liner Tuscania in mid-ocean last week, it was announced when the ship docked here today.

The dead woman was Mrs. Sarah Rodgers, 55, a native of Coleraine, Northern Ireland. Her body was taken from the ship in Belfast.

She was returning to Ireland for Christmas after 30 years in the United States. She was a cook employed by the head of the Robert McBratney liner firm in New York.

The Tuscania left New York December 12 for Belfast and Glasgow, and, passengers said, was struck by a gigantic wave which swept many of them off their feet on Tuesday.

The ship was turned around head-on once on Tuesday and once again on Wednesday, they said, by the force of the gale.

On Wednesday night, they asserted, many of the third-class passengers were in the accommodation companionway when a tremendous sea swept over the vessel and hurled men and women around in the swirling waters on the deck. Only the coolness of the crew prevented a panic.

HERE'S A CITY THAT'S RICH

Albany, Ga., Dec. 22 (AP)—Officials of this southwest Georgia city figure it to be one up on Milwaukee, Wis., on the plus side of the municipal ledger.

Milwaukee reported it had paid all current expenses, established an amortization fund to care for bonded indebtedness and accumulated a bank balance of approximately $4,000,000. That balance, the Albany officials have estimated, would mean about $6.67 per capita on a basis of 600,000 population for the Wisconsin metropolis.

Albany, they claim, has a bank balance of approximately $8.80 per capita for its 15,000 inhabitants.

The Georgia city in five years has retired $128,000 in outstanding notes, built up a cash balance of $32,000, accumulated a $100,000 sinking fund and, in addition, reduced its tax rate 25.6 per cent.

IT'S EXPENSIVE TO TALK PEACE

Washington, Dec. 22 (AP)—Secretary Stimson expects the world arms conference at Geneva next year to last seven or eight months. This prospect was shown in his request to Congress passed along by President Hoover for funds to foot the bill of the American delegation. He asked for $450,000, but just as a starter. With the long-drawn-out prospect he suggested it would be better to add new appropriations as they were needed.

He estimated the cost of maintaining a delegation at the conference would be at least $55,000 a month.

Stimson said:

"Active American participation is a vital necessity if the first general disarmament conference is not to fail."

Points of the President's Message--Number 10

Congress should give serious consideration as soon as possible to the measures urged by President Hoover for the relief of depositors in closed banks.

In his annual message Mr. Hoover recommends the development of a plan through the Federal Reserve banks by which as large a portion of their deposits in closed banks can be made quickly available to depositors as the assets of these institutions warrant.

Through the Federal Reserve System the Government can quickly find out how much of these "frozen" funds it is warranted in making available to the depositors and the depositors should get the benefit of that information at once.

They should not be compelled to wait for their money for months, and sometimes for years, until the affairs of the banks have been straightened out.

"Such provision," Mr. Hoover says, "would go far to relieve distress in a multitude of families, would stabilize values in many communities and would liberate working capital to thousands of concerns."

Some six million citizens, north, east, south and west, it is estimated, have money tied up indefinitely in closed banks. These deposits total approximately $2,500,000,000.

The assets of these closed banks will probably warrant the ultimate payment of at least 40 per cent of deposits.

If Congress will enact legislation requiring the Federal Reserve banks to liquefy a safe portion of each bank that goes into a receivership, approximately $1,000,000,000 will be put into circulation promptly.

Here is an emergency proposal for legislation that will relieve millions of our fellow citizens, help to restore confidence, aid in the revival of business and benefit communities all over the country which have suffered from bank failures.

It will be an indefensible neglect of the public interest if Congress does not legislate early in the present session for the relief of depositors whose funds are now tied up in closed banks.

The Auto Killers

James H. Roberts, 22 years old, a handsome young chap who was a freshman at Harvard Law School, will not pass a happy Christmas this week with his parents.

He was run down by an auto truck near Harvard Square, Cambridge. He is dead.

His chum, Wilson W. Phelps, 24 years old, if he is still alive, will pass his Christmas on a cot in the Baker Memorial Hospital. Hit by the same truck, he sustained a punctured lung and fractured pelvis and other serious wounds.

Nor will it be a Merry Christmas for George W. Wilson, aged 82, the beloved veteran actor who starred with Edwin Booth, Fanny Davenport and others distinguished upon the stage. He was run down by a taxicab. Only his extraordinary physical strength gives him a chance of recovery from a fractured spine and broken clavicle.

This carnival of death, produced upon human beings by their fellow men, respects no age or station in life.

THERE WERE TWENTY-FIVE MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN KILLED IN THIS STATE LAST WEEK BY AUTO ACCIDENTS.

Registrar Ryan says that all of them were caused by the mania for speed and the thrill of recklessness.

Every one of these accidents was preventable.

In every one of them a life was sacrificed to sheer carelessness or thoughtlessness.

It is unforgivable selfishness. These mad drivers think of themselves only. With never a care for the sorrow they force upon the homes of others in this holiday season when peace and happiness should abide.

Just Folks

Thought for Christmas

Let's go to Christmas with a smile
And turn our backs to care;
One day is such a little while
The joys of life to share.
All through the year with frowns and sighs
We've walked a troubled way,
But Christmas morning let us rise
To laughter and to play.

Let's kiss the mother as of yore
And toss the children high,
Or sprawl with them upon the floor
To watch the train go by.
Let's sing the old-time songs again
And thank the Lord above,
On Christmas morning we can drain
The sparkling cup of love.

Let's have no gloom on Christmas Day
Of business trouble born.
Let's put our worries all away
And hide the frowns we've worn.
With all the family gathered near
Let every one be gay,
And crowd with laughter and with cheer
The coming Christmas day.

Let's prove our faith with eyes aglow,
Our strength with hearts elate,
And let's be merry, just as though
We'd not a care to state.
Let us be brave for friendship's sake
And childhood's right to play,
And out of love and laughter make
An old-time Christmas Day.

New York Day by Day

"Telegraph" Memories

NEW YORK, Dec. 22—With the removal of the Morning Telegraph to its new home on West 36th st., the last of the cobwebby editorial rooms, with battered desks and paste pots raisin-like with cockroaches, passes. For 29 years its home was an abandoned car barn on 8th avenue at 50th.

Something about its mercurial green lights bathed it with that mellowness of Washington Square at twilight. Few newspaper shops incubated so many illustrious journalists. Poor in weekly salaries, it was rich in tradition and a place where many labored for "the love of the game."

The Telegraph crowd ran in a pack. About them was the subtle aura of journalistic adventure. To the world they presented a sardonic front. Editors barked at cubs and scouts were sent on a tour of saloon back rooms at intervals to rescue straying reporters.

No one of talent was ever denied a job and, once a member of the staff, it was seldom one was fired. In later years it has become chiefly a racing paper. But when it was the theatrical voice of Broadway its haphazard crew would congeal now and then into a gloss of genius and turn out a bang-up paper.

Famous figures floating in and out of the edtiorial room were Alfred Henry Lewis, Rennold Wolf, Bide Dudley, Roy McCardell, Roy K. Moulton, Leo Marsh, Baird Leonard, Ben Hecht, Herbert Swope, Helen Green, George J. Nathan, Westbrook Pegler, Hugh Kent, Gene Fowler, Jim Barrett, Heywood Broun, C. L. Edson, Howard Cushman and Joe Van Raalte.

I recall a first visit to the Telegraph with a tinge of admiration. A visitor mounted rickety stairs of a tenement. Walls were criss-crossed with a tatter of gaudy lithographs and, to those hatched in discipline, the esprit de corps took on enchanting rowdyism.

The managing editor yanked a bottle of rye from some musty, mysterious cavern for a long swig. Two poker games were in full bloom. Copy boys were shooting craps between editions in a hallway. And from the barn-like depths boomed the full-throated harmonizing of a barber shop quartette.

* * *

My visit to the Telegraph that frost-fringed midnight was in quest of an increasingly elusive job. I had come out of the middle west to a magazine that died a-borning. After casual questioning I was told to report three days later to the chief of what they called "the Sunday side." Another job seemingly of greater import developed on the Evening Mail in the meantime. Yet it has been a regret I did not have a fling on the Telegraph. It is something to which to refer.

I have it from unquestionable authority that an elderly lady in a Fifth avenue hotel houses 17 dogs in her eight-room apartment. The collection includes three breeds—Pekes, Poms and Scottish terriers. And who could ask for anything more!

Antonio Scotti is the grand old young man of the Metropolitan. For 30 years his rich Neapolitan baritone has flooded the ancient rafters and, today nearing 70, he could pass for 50. Few artists have held popular favor so continuously nor been so extravagantly fertile in friendships. He has seen a score of stars flash across the operatic horizon and vanish, been stabbed by a hundred Torcas, (or does Tosca stab baritones?) took a thousand curtain bows and still thrills like a school boy over his various roles.

Paul Frawley, the juvenile, in the throes of lumbago, ran across Rube Goldberg in London several years ago. Rube recommended some pills which Frawley took faithfully and without success for many months, finally getting relief at a European spa. The other evening they met at a party and Goldberg was hobbling about with lumbar trouble. "I see you are still sticking to your pills," flipped Frawley.

Silhouettes

NOT SINCE the war days of 1917 has the atmosphere of Washington been so tense. At the Capitol it is electrical. The glowing embers of partisanship may burst into flame at any day.

* * *

SPEAKER GARNER, who is a level-headed man of long experience, decides that the House shall do some clear thinking on Mr. Hoover's war debt moratorium. A good many of the law-makers were rushed into commendation of this scheme with such rapidity that they have been muddle-minded since last October. They are coming out of the daze, and this is a wholesome sign at the Capitol.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Pass It On!

"WOULD YOU help a feller that's hungry, Mister?"

"Could you gimme the price of a night's sleep? Honest, I ain't had a decent night's sleep for a week."

How many times in the last week have you heard those questions? Dozens of times, perhaps, if you live in a big city. Most everywhere you look, desperate need. Men shuffling in breadlines, under the stinging rain. Men huddled by the railroad tracks, bending over make-shift fires as your warm train flies past. Men reaching hands from the shadows, peering with dreadful eyes.

Everywhere, need. And when you first began to see it, some weeks ago, it made you sick with pity. Poor devils!—you'd give them anything, without question—a dime, a quarter, a dollar—anything to stop those reaching hands, those peering eyes. That was the way you felt—then. But now—

But now, perhaps, you're not quite as touched. You no longer fee' shocked pity. You may even be asking certain resentful questions. After all, why should you help fellows like that, who didn't help themselves when they could? The very old or the very young and the crippled—they deserve charity, yes. But why should the rest of them expect help? Why didn't they work and save when they had a chance, like you did? You wanted to be lazy, too. You wanted to throw your money around. But you plugged along—while they loafed. WHY SHOULD YOU HELP THEM NOW?

Not a new question. All the generations have asked it, since Need began. And 19 centuries ago, One gave the answer to that question . . .

They had been complaining, too—saintly men though they were, these disciples of Jesus. Why was He so impulsive, so impractical? Why didn't He rebuke those who so plainly needed rebuke? Those Samaritan beggars, for instance. Anyone could see they were a bunch of lazy rogues, loafing while honest men worked. And yet He would have thrifty workers give charity to such! But why? Why should any man enjoy that which he had not earned?

So hearing them muttering, Jesus answered.

What did they mean, said He, with that simple but dangerous smile, by speaking of "that which a man earned"? Did they flatter themselves that they, the provident, and righteous ones, had earned all they enjoyed? Did not they know that they profited by the work of other men as surely as the beggar that lay by the road? Did they not realize that they often received blessings of which they were not worthy and enjoyed service which they had not deserved?

"ONE SOWETH AND ANOTHER REAPETH," said He. "I SENT YOU TO REAP THAT WHEREON YE BESTOWED NO LABOR: OTHER MEN LABORED AND YE ARE ENTERED INTO THEIR LABOR."

* * *

Why should you help? Because you have received help. Why should you give? Because other men have given to you.

All that you have, all that you are, is the gift of countless laborers, living and dead. Your material possessions and conveniences, your knowledge, your philosophy, your standards of living were achieved, not by your efforts, but by the struggles and sacrifices, the dreams and prayers, the tears and furies of millions of men you have not seen. You could not possibly have done this for yourself and, no matter how hard you may labor, you will still be a beggar, you will still die in debt.

And yet today you give a dollar to the world's pitiful need and call yourself generous!

FOR THE SAKE OF THOSE WHO HELPED YOU, PASS IT ON!

The American Congress Speaks for the People

By Claude G. Bowers

The Ways and Means Committee of the House has reported favorably on the one year moratorium, with this amendment:

"It is hereby expressly declared to be against the policy of Congress that any of the indebtedness of foreign countries to the United States should be in any manner cancelled or reduced, and nothing in the joint resolution shall be construed as indicating a contrary policy or implying that favorable consideration will be given at any time to a change in the policy hereby declared."

It is a significant fact, of which the American people will not fail to take cognizance, that the Democrats on the committee voted to a man for this amendment, and all the Republicans, with one exception, voted against this declaration that the debts of fourteen nations must not be transferred from the people who got the money to the backs of the taxpayers of the United States.

This line-up of the Administration forces on the committee is significant and suggestive of the pressure from the White House to save the plan of the international bankers to make good their private loans at the expense of the people of the United States.

Since the policy of the Congress has been declared, if the purpose of the President in asking for the revival of the war debts commission is to pave the way for the transfer of the European burdens to the backs of Americans, there is no point to its revival. For Congress has spoken for the American people.

* * *

Our Prediction Has Been Justified

Many weeks ago, in the very beginning, we predicted in this column that the purpose of the Administration forces would be to give Herbert Hoover the credit for all the money raised by private charity and through the appropriations of governmental units with which the President has nothing to do. We were assured that it was a non-partisan drive to save women and children from starving; and in New York City Tammany captains were put to work to help raise the fund, and Al Smith took a more prominent part than any man in New York. But our prediction has been justified, as we knew it would be.

Secretary Hurley, in a bitter partisan speech, unnecessarily offensive to Democrats, has just had the temerity—we had almost said "the guts"—to credit Herbert Hoover with the money raised by private charity and from the pockets of Democrats, and from the treasury of Democratic municipalities like New York.

If women and children do not starve this Winter during the Hoover panic, it will not be because of anything the President has done. We were raising money through private charity, and the Democratic Administration of New York City was appropriating money to prevent starvation before the President was ready to admit that there was a serious crisis and while he was reported to be complaining that the suffering of the people was exaggerated.

Senator Robinson has denounced this cheap attempt of Mr. Hurley. It is promising to find that the Democrats now know the meaning of "co-operation" and have served notice that their co-operation will take the form of improving any further suggestions that may come from the White House.

* * *

The Money Raised Is Not Sufficient

We now know positively that the money raised by private charity is not sufficient to prevent suffering; the Walker Administration in New York is adding more millions from its treasury because the National Government in a national crisis will do nothing.

Senator Wagner is now asking Congress to instruct the Federal Employment Stabilization Board to submit plans for the use of two billion dollars on emergency public building. He was the author of the bill that created the board. His measure was defeated time and again through the efforts of the Administration forces, and it was finally approved by the President with a commendation that was all the more striking because he had so long opposed it.

But he has not taken advantage of it, and won't.

We are not going to get out of depression in this country until the human equation is taken into consideration.

If the Administration is not opposed to transferring billions of other people's debts to the backs of American taxpayers to help out the international bankers on their private loans, it ought to be willing to spend a fraction of the amount to give work to men who have been denied the right to earn their bread in self-respecting toil.

* * *

Absolutely Incredible

It is to be hoped that the other Wagner bill for the creation of adequate Federal employment agencies to work in co-operation with those of States will be pushed again. It passed the Congress when both branches were Republican; and was killed by the President with a pocket veto.

Perhaps it was in anticipation of this that Secretary Doak announces that the notoriously inadequate Federal employment offices have in six months found employment for 800,000 men; that through co-operation with State agencies it has found employment for 600,000 more, making 1,400,000 men who have been put to work by the Administration's method in six months.

This is absolutely incredible. There are more men on the streets today and living on the dole of charity than there were six months ago; and it is utterly unbelievable that there are 1,400,000 men in jobs today that were out of work six months ago.

If there are 1,400,000 who were jobless six months ago and have jobs today, and more men out of work today than there were six months ago, then conditions indeed are serious; for it means that more than 1,400,000 who had jobs six months ago are on the streets today.

Where were these 1,400,000 put to work? In what communities? And how many in each community? How many of the jobless in New York City have been put to work through the Administration?

We have had enough experience with the "statistics" of the Administration to destroy all faith in them. There were 5,000,000 out of work more than a year ago when Mr. Doak's department had the temerity to report that less than half that number were out of jobs.
